COAL COMMISSION REVOKES MINIMUM PRICE SCHEDULE

Attack on Constitutionality by City of Atlanta, Others Brings General Withdrawal of Order.

AGENCY PLANNING NEW RATE SCALE

Estimated Cost of Program to Municipality
Is $25,000 Each Year.

The attack by the city of Atlanta and others on minimum coal prices proved successful yesterday when the federal Bituminous Coal Commission voluntarily revoked its minimum price schedule, effective Friday midnight.

The revocation was announced yesterday afternoon in Washington.

The schedule, if in effect, would cost the city of Atlanta an estimated $25,000 a year.

J. Charlie Murphy, assistant city attorney, said Atlanta's plea for an injunction in the appellate court of the District of Columbia was to have been argued Friday morning.

Atlanta is attacking the constitutionality of the Guffey act, under which the commission and its rates were set up, also, Murphy said principal grounds for this action was the act attempted to encroach on the sovereignty of the state and its political subdivisions.

Numerous Court Orders.

Percy Tellow, member of the Bituminous Coal Commission, told Washington reporters the commission had decided to take this voluntary action because of the numerous court orders which have been issued suspending prices for certain consumers.

As soon as possible, the commission will seek to re-establish prices in accordance with the procedure the courts have found the commission should follow, he stated.

Chief attacks on the schedule have been based on the contention that the commission had failed to conduct "adequate" public hearings before the rates were promulgated.

Murphy recently attacked the legality of the minimum coal prices before the commission in Washington, contending with representatives of New York city and Dionne Quins Call Parents 'Ma' and 'Pa'

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—
The Dionne quintuplets call their parents "Ma" and "Pa." The Progressive Education Association heard today at its 20th national convention.

Nearly 2,000 parents, teachers and school administrators listened with keen interest to a report on the five sisters by Dr. William M.
Blatz, Toronto psychologist, who has directed their educational training.

He said he expects them to score an intelligence quotient of from 95 to 105 (normal) by the time they are five or six years old.

9 Twins in Family! Here Are 4 Brothers and Sisters

No, you are not seeing double. These are two twins, the sons and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Roberson, of 522 Grant street, S. E. On the front are Merlin and Marshall, 10 years old, and standing are their sisters, Beatrice and Bernice Roberson, 19 years old. All the twins were born in the month of August. There are five other twins in the family.

Etheridge Tells Georgia

By LUKE GREENE,

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 23.—America will achieve the original concept of democracy in the same measure in which it alleviates economic conditions, restores individual rights and dignity and wipes out illiteracy, Mark F. Etheridge, vice president and general manager of the Louisville Courier Journal and Times, told a throng of editors and newspapermen from every nook and corner in the state who gathered here tonight to open the eleventh annual Georgia Press Institute. He urged editors to safeguard the national sanity.

In a vigorous address in which he upheld the policies of the New Deal, Etheridge said "The time has come for us in the south to reconcile ourselves to the new order instead of clinging to old fetishes and pining after the faint perfumes of an old order that never was as sweet as the romanticists would have it."

Identical Twin Boys Baffle Their Mother

Parent Has To Use Both Names When Talking to One of Youngsters.

By YOLANDE GWIN,
Constitution Staff Writer.

Identical twins to stop talk about all identical twins were uncovered in Atlanta yesterday.

Their own mother can't tell them apart!

One is named Marshall, the other Merlin, and they are 10-year-old boys.

So, when one is disrupting the quiet of the home, as a 10-year-old boy is apt to do, their mother, Mrs. J. L. Roberson, merely commands:

"Stop that at once, Marshall-Merlin."

And the guilty one stops.

The other goes quietly about his play. They have learned through the years to expect these double commands.

That's Not All!

But Mrs. Roberson doesn't mind the confusion. She is used to twins. She has twin daughters, Beatrice and Bernice, 19 years old, but that is not all!

A daughter, Mrs. Troy Harris, married a twin.

Mrs. J. F. Lord, a sister of Mrs.
Roberson, is the mother of twins.

PROOF DEMANDED OF LIQUOR 'BRIBES'

'Speakeasies' Return to Augusta After Threat to Crack Down on Sellers.

By YOLANDE GWIN,
Constitution Staff Writer.

"Speakeasy" bars had returned to Augusta yesterday because of the order banning whisky sales, while three members of the Georgia general assembly demanded proof of a minister's charges that $12,000 was paid out of a slush fund for three wet votes on the liquor bill during the special session.

T. Grady Head, state revenue commissioner, who ordered liquor dealers to cease all sales pending elections, admitted that "inspectors" representing his department are making investigations of sales in cities which openly license liquor.

Asked to Furnish Proof.

Representatives William G. Hastings, of Fulton; James V. Carmichael, of Cobb; and Spence Grayson, of Chatham, wrote the Rev. George C. V. Gibson, of Columbus, asking him to furnish proof of the payment which he charged was made during the special session.

This development came as rumors spread that the dry leaders of the state will sponsor a dry candidate for Governor against Governor Rivers this fall.

In the meantime, circulation of petitions calling for local option elections went forward in Fulton and a score of other counties.

Prosecution Promised.

Carmichael, Hastings and Grayson demanded that the Rev. Mr.
Gibson, pastor of the Rose Hill Baptist church, in Columbus, substantiate his statements made before a W. C. T. U. meeting in Columbus last week. They offered help in prosecuting members if it were proved they accepted bribes in the passage of the bill.

The Columbus pastor, informed of the letter yesterday by newsmen, said he had "no comment to make."

"There wasn't $12,000 spent in the passage of all the bills offered during the special session, much less for the purpose of buying three wet votes on the liquor bill," Hastings remarked last night.

RELIEF MEASURE PASSED BY SENATE, SENT TO HOUSE

Bailey, of North Carolina, Alone Votes Against Passage of $250,000,000
Emergency Aid Bill.

PLAN TO INCLUDE ALIENS DEFEATED

Lower Body May Either Accept Amendments or Ask for Conference.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—
A 67-to-1 senate indorsement sent the $250,000,000 emergency relief bill back to the house today for action on amendments.

Only Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, who waged an unsuccessful fight to require communities to contribute to WPA projects, voted against passage of the appropriation measure.

The house may either accept senate amendments or ask for a conference to work out a compromise. One senate change would exempt the appropriation from provisions of the Woodrum amendment, attached to last year's relief bill. This provided that the funds must be spread over the fiscal year.

Another alteration eliminated a house amendment designed to grant relief to aliens who had "lived honorably" in this country for ten years but who were barred from citizenship. Present law withholds relief from aliens who have not taken out their first citizenship papers.

The senate rejected, 47 to 25, Bailey's amendment which would have required local contributions of 25 per cent in the form of cash or materials on all projects financed by the fund.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat,
South Carolina, who supported a similar amendment offered to last year's relief bill, opposed the Bailey proposal, expressing the opinion the senate ought to await the findings of his special committee investigating unemployment and relief.

County Award Papers Must Be Filed Today

Today is the last day on which Georgia counties may file their applications for consideration in
The Atlanta Constitution's $7,500 Progressive Government Awards program. No further time extension for filing can be made.

Scores of counties already have filed applications, but those which have not yet done so, should mail or send them not later than midnight tonight. Every Georgia county should be represented among those which progressed in 1937.

Judges will begin consideration of accomplishments as soon as is possible and winners will be announced by The Constitution when the judgment has been completed.

British and Italian Objectives In Coming London-Rome Parley

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Terms for negotiations with Italy were being drafted today by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and his cabinet.

Britain's main conditions as listed by competent quarters are:

1. Withdrawal of Italian forces from Spain and the Balearic islands.
2. Reduction of Italy's forces in Libya, North Africa.
3. Cessation of Italy's anti-British propaganda in the Near East.
4. Some agreement on naval armaments in the Mediterranean.
5. Italian recognition of British commercial interests in Spain.
6. Possibly an Italian undertaking to establish Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, who fled his country when the Italians conquered it in 1935-36, as a puppet emperor.
7. Italian support for a four-power pact among Britain, Italy, France and Germany, thereby imposing restrictions on Nazi expansionist aims.

NAZIS TERRORIZE AUSTRIAN JEWS

'We Have Conquered.'

(Copyright, 1938, by United Press.)

VIENNA, Feb. 23.—Austrian Nazis, shouting "We have conquered!" tonight terrorized the country's 250,000 Jews and demanded stern measures against Catholic priests, in open defiance of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's decree against political demonstrations.

(Austria laid down a set of rigid restrictions on Nazi activities tonight on the eve of Schuschnigg's speech explaining his side of the new Austro-German agreement, the Associated Press says.)

"Ban Hell Hitler."

(The new order, issued by the department of security, banned the wearing of Nazi insignia and Nazi uniforms, prohibited Nazi party activity and limited the use of Nazi songs and the greeting "Heil Hitler.")

("Heil Hitler" would be tolerated, the order said only if spoken without intent to political demonstrations and Nazi songs were forbidden except on occasions approved by the Fatherland Front.)

(The flag law was unchanged, which means the swastika flag may be displayed in hotels by German citizens but only beside an Austrian flag of equal size.)

As disorders spread in the provinces more than 1,000,000 working people, nearly one-sixth of the total population, rallied to Schus-chnigg's support with a pledge to fight for any measures he may decide upon to protect Austrian independence and prevent the nation from becoming "Germany's football."

FLIGHT TO NORTH FOLLOWS ASSAULT ON FORMOSA ISLE

Dozen Big Ships Accom-

Are Winging Way to Main Island of Kyushu.

8 DEAD, 29 INJURED IN EARLY SHELLING

40 Warcraft Reported Destroyed in First Raid in History of Nippon.

TOKYO, Feb. 24 (Thursday).— (AP)—Domei (Japanese news agency) dispatches from Fukuoka today reported 12 Chinese bombers were approaching Kyushu, one of the main Japanese islands.

The Domei dispatch said the approach of Chinese planes was reported by Fukuoka defense headquarters, about 500 miles west and south of Tokyo.

Kyushu island, southernmost of the main Japanese islands, is 750 miles north of the Island of Formosa which Chinese war planes raided yesterday, inflicting numerous casualties at the capital.

That raid was the first air attack suffered by Japan in the empire's history.

Raid Warnings Sounded.

Air raid warnings were sounded throughout north Kyushu and also in Yamaguchi province, across the straits from Kyushu.

Nagasaki, Kyushu's principal port, with a population of 211,000, was warned of the approaching planes.

(The United Press said air raid warnings also were sounded in Yamaguchi, a few miles above Nagasaki, less than 250 miles from the important Japanese industrial center of Osaka.)

The reports said the 12 bombers accompanied by pursuit planes were sighted flying eastward at a high altitude.

It was understood that information that the planes were winging their way toward Japan came from near Hangchow, Japanese-held city, 110 miles south of Shanghai.

Raiders would have to cross about 500 miles of Yellow sea to reach Japan from China.

(Further United Press reports said the air raid warnings were issued at 11:40 a. m. (Thursday), a little more than two hours after the planes were reported flying over Hangchow.

Powerful Attacks.

(Almost simultaneous with the warnings came an announcement from Rear Admiral Kiyoshi Noda, chief of the Japanese navy information bureau, that he believed Chinese planes were capable of a

New Hearings Sought for Super U. S. Highway System

President Shows Interest in Plan Placing Atlanta in Path to Florida.

Congressional advocates of a super-highway system crisscrossing the United States and placing Atlanta on a direct route from Florida to Buffalo and the north central states yesterday sought new hearings on the year-old road plan.

Bills embodying such a program at a cost of approximately $8,000,000,000 were advanced before a house committee last May by Representatives Snyder, Democrat, Pennsylvania, and Randolph, Democrat, West Virginia. President Roosevelt has indicated interest in the proposal, and Senator Bulkley, of Ohio, introduced a similar measure in the senate after presidential conference.

Officials of the Federal Public Roads Bureau here said the elaborate system would be of special value in speeding up long-distance traffic and would make excellent military roads, pointing out that proposals call for building of roads inland, away from the coast.

Atlanta stands to benefit in tourist trade if the proposed network of roads is approved, the road men said.

The plan pointed out that under the present route most of the eastern Florida traffic goes down the coast and that the traffic routed through Atlanta is from the territory around Pittsburgh.

Under the proposal, a superhighway would be built from Buffalo, N. Y., to Pensacola, Fla., by way of Atlanta, Jonesboro, Tenn.; Charleston, W. Va.; Uniontown, Pa., and Pittsburgh.

This route, the government officials, explained, would attract traffic to Atlanta from Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, western New York and Ohio, Indiana and western Pennsylvania. Once reaching Atlanta on the superhighway, travelers could find an easy route to the Florida east coast on highways already paved.

Among other proposed routes are: St. Petersburg, Fla., to Los Angeles by way of Mobile, Baton Rouge, San Antonio and El Paso, Fort Myers, Fla., to Augusta, Maine, by way of St. Petersburg, Reidville, Ga.; Columbia, S. C.; Raleigh, N. C.; Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Hartford, Conn., and Concord, N. H. Baton Rouge, La., to Chicago by way of Jackson, Miss., and Memphis, Tenn.

The above map shows the routes of the proposed national super-highway system network. Advocates of the plan propose to pay for the $8,000,000,000 highway system with toll fees. Under the plan as outlined, Atlanta would be placed on a direct route from Buffalo, N. Y., to Pensacola, Fla.

COUPLE ROBBED OF CASH AND AUTO

Bandit Forces Atlantian and Girl To Leave Car.

A couple seated in an automobile were held up by a white, armed bandit who escaped with cash and the car early last night.

The victims were W. J. Webb, of 1040 Gordon street, S. W., and Miss Elsie Aiken, of 920 Drewry street, N. E. They told police they were in front of Miss Aiken's home when the bandit approached.

He opened a door of the coupe, thrust a shiny pistol forward and commanded Miss Aiken to move over. After entering the car, the bandit ordered Webb to drive off.

When they had gone a block, he took $11 from Webb and 75 cents from Miss Aiken.

Then the bandit said, "You folks get out now. I'll leave the car down the street." Instead, he drove off at high speed.

New U. S. Grants of $855,000,000 Urged To Improve Public Schools

Committee Appointed in 1936 by President Roosevelt Says Federal Aid Only Way to Correct Problems in Educational System of Nation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The public school system in the United States greatly needs improvement. Glaring inequalities characterize educational opportunities and expenditures for schools throughout the nation.

The committee proposed division of the new grants into six major categories, as follows, the first sum being for the starting year of 1939-40 and the second for the maximum in 1944-45:

- 1.—General aid to elementary and secondary education, $400,000,000—$1,400,000,000.
- 2.—Improved preparation of teachers, $2,000,000—$6,000,000.
- 3.—Construction of school buildings to facilitate district reorganization, $200,000,000—$300,000,000.
- 4.—Administration of state departments of education, $1,000,000—$2,000,000.
- 5.—Educational service for adults, $5,000,000—$15,000,000.
- 6.—Library service for rural areas, $2,000,000—$6,000,000.

Part of the general aid fund, it said, should be spent in such schools for textbooks and reading materials, transportation of pupils, scholarships for pupils 16 to 19 years of age, and for health and welfare services.

Committee Findings. In its general conclusions, the committee found:

Georgia Only State Left in Union Using County Unit Voting System

ture to enact another county unit law that will stand the test of the courts.

It is claimed the law which was declared unconstitutional was aimed directly at Shelby county (Memphis) in an effort to thwart the political organization of E. H. Crump, political leader. Browning refuses to comment on his plans looking to its re-establishment but is daily conferring with his cabinet of advisors on the matter.

Founded on Same Idea. The invalidated Tennessee law, although differing from Georgia's in some respects, was founded on the same idea—that primaries should be decided on the basis of a fixed number of unit votes for each county rather than by direct popular vote.

This also is the principle of the electoral college by which the popular ballot for president and vice president of the United States is formally ratified.

The Georgia plan allots to each county a number of unit votes equal to twice the number of representatives it has in the legislature. At present this gives two units each to 121 small counties, and six to the eight largest—a total of 410 for the whole state.

Tennessee proposed a system giving each county one unit for every 100 popular votes cast for the Democratic gubernatorial nominee in the last general election, but the total would have been limited to one-eighth of 1 per cent of the county's population.

Texas Law Invalidated. It was principally because of this limitation clause that the law was held unconstitutional. Similarly, the United States supreme court invalidated a Texas unit plan some years ago because it excluded negroes from primaries. Georgia's primary law has nothing in it excluding negroes.

Practical working of the Tennessee system was observed because the adverse ruling came before an election had been held. The law was passed at a special session of the legislature last October.

The law's effect would have been to reduce sharply the heavy voting strength of Shelby county, which polled approximately 60,000 votes in the election when Browning went into office. Under the county unit plan Shelby would have been limited to 384 units, representing a popular ballot of 38,400.

Such limitation, the Tennessee supreme court held, "amounts to excluding some of the voters from their party's primary or to debasing the ballots of all the voters," in violation of the equal rights provisions of the constitution.

In Existence Long Time. Historians fail to establish the exact date of origin of the Georgia county unit system, although there is general agreement that some form of it has existed since colonial days.

The plan began to take more definite form in the Reconstruction period after the War Between the States when the reborn Democratic party was struggling against chaotic political conditions. Then, as in its earlier stages, the legislative representation on which the unit vote plan was based continued to favor the predominating agricultural interests, and this phase of the system has been revised despite a shift of population to urban centers in recent years.

On that ground, opponents of the county unit system have predicted their contention that it gives small counties the balance of power in elections and makes it possible occasionally for a candidate to be defeated by the unit vote although he may have secured a majority in the popular vote.

First Reference. One of the first recorded references to use of the unit vote was in the 1882 gubernatorial contest between Alexander H. Stephens and Major A. O. Bacon. Thereafter it was in operation up to 1906.

A subsequent political break between Governor Hoke Smith and Senator Tom Watson led indirectly to a move for return of the county unit plan, and it was restored as party practice in 1908 when "Little Joe" Brown defeated Smith for governor.

Another bitter campaign in 1914 and a prolonged deadlock in the state convention aroused sentiment which culminated in passage of the Neill primary act of 1917, establishing the method of elections and giving a formal place in the code to the county unit system.

The Neill law has governed Democratic primaries in Georgia since that time, although it is discredited in effect rather than mandatory as it contains no penalties.

The system was developed by the Democratic party over a long period of years, former Governor John M. Slaton said yesterday. In the main, the system is only the agreement of party members to abide by this plan in the nomination of candidates who run for election in the general election.

INSURGENTS AWAIT SIGNAL FOR DRIVE

Picked Troops To Force Advance Toward Mediterranean Against Reds.

HENDAYE, France.—(AP)—The Spanish Insurgent troops moved into positions on the Teruel-Valencia highway tonight to await a signal from Generalissimo Franco for a drive through government territory toward the Mediterranean sea.

Although strongly entrenched government forces stood between them and the coast, Franco's troops were said by military observers to be in a far better position to strike than before the government fighters took Teruel in December, only to lose the city again yesterday.

HITLER TO WITHDRAW TROOPS IN SPAIN

LONDON, Thursday, Feb. 24.—(UP)—The Daily Express said today that Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, last night agreed to the British plan for the withdrawal of foreign troops from Spain. Italy has agreed previously.

The new Insurgent strength lay in the conquest of the Alfambra river valley, north of Teruel, where government mountain positions previously constituted a threat to left wing Insurgent operations.

Government leaders declared on the other hand their forces' positions, overlooking mountain passes nine miles southeast of Teruel, were "ideal" for defensive purposes and virtually were invulnerable. They took up the positions yesterday after evacuating the provincial capital, 160 miles east of Madrid.

The Insurgents said their forces advancing from Teruel, had progressed to El Castell, 15 miles directly east and through Castrovieja, three miles to the southeast. This would place the Insurgent front line some 60 miles from the Mediterranean coast between the key government cities of Valencia and Barcelona.

BRITISH FREIGHTER REPORTED SHELLED

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The British freighter Shetland was reported shelled in Valencia roads this afternoon. The report to Lloyds' here said there were no casualties.

The captain informed the owners there was a direct hit in the forecastle and the 1,846-ton freighter's hull was holed. He was proceeding down the Spanish coast to Gibraltar.

INSURGENT CRUISER BOMBARD CATALAN TOWNS

BARCELONA, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Insurgent cruisers Baleares and Canarias today shelled Palamos and San Feliu de Guixols on the Catalan coast north of Barcelona, while Insurgent hydroplanes bombed Sagunto, Orpesa and Puig, near Valencia.

A government communiqué said government planes tried to drop bombs on the cruisers, but failed to hit them.

eral will assume office upon the retirement of Major General Edgar T. Conley, present adjutant general, on April 30.

Receiving congratulations he smilingly stopped salutations of "general" with, "Not yet; the appointment must be confirmed."

Colonel Adams has served as the fourth corps area's adjutant general since June of last year and previously had served with the corps area headquarters from August, 1926, to June, 1929.

Born in a family of army officers, his father was Major N. A. Adams, of the 11th Kansas cavalry in the War Between the States. Colonel Adams attended the United States Military Academy and was appointed second lieutenant of infantry in October, 1902. A successful army career has led him to service in various sections of the United States, the Philippine Islands, China and France.

Sent Soldiers Home. While with American Expeditionary Forces during the World War, Colonel Adams was awarded the distinguished service medal for exceptional administrative and executive ability while adjutant at the army base at Brest, France. This base was responsible for the repatriation of more than a million American soldiers.

Colonel Adams resides at Fort McPherson and has a wife and two sons. One son, Lieutenant James Y. Adams, is stationed at Fort Benning, and his other son, Cadet Emory S. Adams Jr., is a member of the third class at the United States Military Academy.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Twenty-three persons were known to have died and others were feared lost in a fire which swept four villages in lower Egypt yesterday.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Colman—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach, you get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks blue.

A most bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. $3.00. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Chinese Bombers Roar On Japan; Warnings Sounded in 3 Provinces

"powerful attack" upon Japan proper. (The navy spokesman said that all of Japan's "air defense preparations are adequate.")

CHINESE AIRPLANES ATTACK FORMOSA

TOKYO, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Japanese empire suffered the first air raid of its history today as Chinese warplanes bombed the island of Formosa and inflicted numerous casualties.

The Formosa government reported eight persons were killed and 29 injured in attacks on Taihoku, capital near the northern tip of the island, and Shenchiku City, on the western coast. It said three children were among the dead at Taihoku.

Formosa lies approximately 120 miles east of the southeastern coast of China. It was ceded to Japan by China in 1895 as a result of the Chinese-Japanese war of 1894-95 and a vast part of its 5,500,000 inhabitants is racially Chinese.

Claim Heavy Damages. (Dispatches from Hankow variously said 70 or 36 Russian-made planes flown by pilots of undisclosed nationality conducted the attacks from a base somewhere on China's southeast coast.

(Chinese reports said 40 Japanese airplanes, two hangars and a gasoline storage plant were destroyed at the Taihoku air base and heavy damage inflicted on strategic points on the western shore of Formosa.

(They said the raiders returned unscathed and their attack probably was a "forerunner" of similar raids to come.)

(Previous reports have stated a "foreign legion of the air," containing American, Russian, British and French volunteers was flying for the Chinese.)

Carrying the Chinese-Japanese conflict to Japanese soil for the first time, the raiders struck at the air base on the outskirts of Taihoku at 11 a. m., dropping 10 bombs.

Too High for Guns. An army communiqué reported there were an "obscure number" of planes which flew so high that anti-aircraft batteries were unable to reach them.

"Consequently," it said, "the bombs landed far from the local airbase, hitting private houses and causing several casualties among women and children. There was no serious damage."

The communiqué added that an hour later the raiders attacked Shenchiku City.

Authorities on the island issued an air raid warning for the entire colony.

The news caused great excitement in Tokyo, where the population had been told the imperial air force had complete control of the skies.

GENERAL MATSUI RELIEVED OF COMMAND SHANGHAI, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Japan's widely extended expeditionary forces, stalled on nearly all fronts by the hard-fighting Chinese, were prodded forward today after a drastic shake-up of high commanding officers.

In the air as well as on the ground the Japanese encountered desperate resistance which threatened to prolong their costly invasion of China indefinitely.

In an effort to start the Japanese war machine rolling again, General Shunroku Hata took command of forces in the Shanghai-Nanking area, replacing General Iwane Matsui. General Hata had been inspector of military education in Japan.

Prince Asaka Recalled. The other two officers recalled to Tokyo were Lieutenant General

MOTHER BAFFLED BY IDENTICAL TWINS

Beatrice and Bernice look alike, but not so much as their brothers. They are small, with black hair and large brown eyes. They always dress alike, except that Beatrice wears a half size larger dress than her sister, Bernice.

Same Illness. But Marshall and Merlin are the identical twins. They are the same height, the same weight, the same coloring (both are blondes), they have the same type teeth, their bone construction is the same and they have had the same illnesses and at the same time.

They both have scars on their thumbs and their fingerprints are in the same classification, although slightly different. When the gang at the W. F. Slaton school start a fight in typical school boy fashion, Marshall looks out for Merlin and vice versa.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberson, who reside at 522 Grant street, have three children in addition to the two sets of twins. They are J. F., J. R., Mrs. Troy Harris and Marlon Roberson.

Don't take a cold lightly. Don't be namby-pamby in your treatment. A cold is an extremely serious thing and may end in something grave. Treat a cold promptly. Treat it for what it is—an internal infection.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want for a cold!

First of all, they are a distinct cold medicine, made for colds and nothing else. "Cure-alls" may be treacherous.

Secondly, Bromo Quinine tablets are internal medication. They do an inside job, which is what you want.

Fourth in Effect! Bromo Quinine tablets do four important things in the treatment of a cold.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

On the southern front of the Lunghai "corridor" war zone, the Chinese reported driving the Japanese back south of the Hwai river. Chinese troops advancing from the west were reported to have pushed within eight miles of Pengpu, important city on the Tientsin-Pukow railway, near the Hwai river.

The Japanese apparently have lost practically all the ground they gained several weeks ago when they advanced along the railway a considerable distance north of Pengpu.

JAPANESE CLAIM HONAN OCCUPIED PEIPING, China, Feb. 24 (Thursday)—(UP)—A Japanese spokesman asserted today that "Japanese troops have occupied all of Honan province north of the Yellow river."

It was admitted by an army spokesman here that the "new situation" referred to an expected prolongation of the war.

(In Tokyo, the war department declined to elaborate on reasons for the changes, but it was known that the army for some time has been highly dissatisfied with the slow progress made, especially in the campaign to seize the Lunghai railway.)

Japanese reported their troops had forced the Chinese to withdraw from northern Honan province and had advanced to the north bank of the Yellow river in that sector but, so far, they were unable to cross the wide stream.

Japanese Losses Ground. Chinese troops defending the south bank of this barrier river have repulsed Japanese efforts to cross east or west of the Peiping-Hankow railway line. The Japanese reported occupying Menghsien, on the north bank, and "opening the way" for a crossing, but they still have to accomplish it.

COAL COMMISSION REVOKES MINIMUMS

70 Per Cent Boost.

The commission's order fixed the price of coal at the mine, and thus raised the price to the city for its waterworks department, for instance, from $1 per ton to $1.70 a ton.

W. Zode Smith, head of the water department here, asserted the higher price would have cost the city about $21,000 in his department alone, Murphy estimated the difference in prices for coal for other departments would have run the total well above $25,000 a year.

The minimum coal price affected all consumers who bought from mines, Murphy said. Particularly affected were cities, railroads and large industries.

The court of appeals of the District of Columbia has suspended the prices for everyone who had asked it and it was for this reason that the revocation order was issued yesterday following conferences with representatives of labor and industry.

Tetlow said the commission felt relief should be given to all to protect other consumers.

The commissioners met informally with coal mine operators and with representatives of the United Mine Workers of America before arriving at their decision.

The original price schedule was fixed by the commission to "stabilize" the industry and end cut-throat competition. It lowered household grade coal prices, while increasing them on industrial and locomotive grade fuel.

Water Glasses, Cow Bells Used To Interpret Sacred Music

Hymns played on piccolo cow bells and musical glasses. Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fish brought new idea in sacred music last night to Druid Hills Baptist church when they presented "The Life of Christ in Music" through the bells, glasses, vibraharp, piano accordion and musical saw.

Couple Present Odd Program at Druid Hills Baptist Church.

A new idea in sacred music sounded forth last night in Druid Hills Baptist church.

Instead of hymns being played on the traditional organ, songs in praise of the Lord were played upon a set of 34 musical glasses; a vibraharp, a set of 32 piccolo cow bells, a musical saw and a piano accordion.

The players were Wilbur Fish, 27-year-old graduate of a Bible training school at Binghamton, N. Y., and his wife, Katherine, formerly a school teacher at Columbus, Ohio.

Travel 150,000 Miles.
The couple, who have traveled more than 150,000 miles all over the country in the past seven years with their musical instruments for sacred music, presented a program called "The Life of Christ in Music."

The program began with the hymn, "List to the Voice of the Savior," Fish playing the accordion and his wife playing the bells.

After Fish read from Isaiah, Chapter 53, verses four to six, the couple played "Ivory Palaces," on the musical glasses, and then Fish played "O Little Town of Bethlehem" on the vibraharp.

The presentation went forward with other readings from the Scriptures, interspersed with such well-known hymns as "The Old Rugged Cross," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "At the Cross," "Christ Arose," "The Holy City" and "I Gave My Life for Thee."

Glasses Scaled by Water.

Fish explained that 14 of the musical glasses are tuned to the scale with plain spigot water. The other glasses are naturally in tune. They were chosen from 6,000 glasses. The instrument produces a tone similar to an organ as the player rubs fingers around the rims of the glasses.

The vibraharp is similar to a xylophone, except that the bars are of metal, instead of wood. An electric motor attachment enables the player to pedal a tremolo effect. The tonal quality resembles that of a harp.

Sound produced by the piccolo bells is a cross between a cow bell and a Swiss bell.

Fish was graduated from the training school in 1932. He first began his "musical service" with the bells and a xylophone. The couple have been married about three years.

WEATHER ASSISTS IN STILL SEIZURE

75 Gallons of Whisky Taken, Negro Arrested.

MARIETTA, Feb. 23.—The keen smelling powers of "the law," accentuated by unseasonably warm weather, today resulted in seizure of what officers here termed one of the largest steam distilleries ever found in Cobb county.

Though they had been quietly "watching" the still several weeks, it was not until today, officers said, that their noses disclosed it was in operation. Swooping down on the outfit, located on a dairy farm on Johnson's Ferry road, about eight miles northeast of here, they arrested a negro listed as Charlie Dickson, who was placed in the Cobb county jail here, charged with assisting in operating a still. Another warrant named a white man, but a second arrest had not been made tonight.

Constables A. A. McPherson and C. A. Powers, and County Police-men S. C. Hicks and E. C. Ward reported they found and destroyed 4,500 gallons of mash in 50 90-gallon barrels, and confiscated approximately 75 gallons of whisky in cans.

TVA PROJECT PLANNED IN BRASSTOWN VALLEY

YOUNG HARRIS, Feb. 23.—Brasstown valley, consisting of several hundred acres of fertile bottom land and many more hundreds of acres of badly-eroded and poorly terraced hillside land, has been designated as a Tennessee Valley Authority "watershed demonstration" project, it has been announced here.

In co-operating with TVA authorities in the "watershed" project, Brasstown valley will follow in the footsteps of near-by Bell Creek community, in Towns county, which has become nationally known for its rapid strides under the TVA program. The plan for Brasstown valley will call for less planting in row crops, more planting of grain crops, and better pastures.

Young Harris College authorities have pledged full co-operation to TVA officials in furthering the program, which will provide for a survey of the lands, the livestock, the condition of the homes and rotation of crops.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Cotton price adjustment payments made by the federal government under the new farm bill would be at the rate of three cents a pound on the 1937 crop, under a bill introduced today by Representative Collins, Democrat, Mississippi.

The bill was predicated on the

Governor Chandler Enters Race for Barkley's Seat

Candidate Declares He Will Not Make New Deal Issue of Campaign.

NEWPORT, Ky., Feb. 23.—(P) Governor Albert B. (Happy) Chandler, of Kentucky, formally announced tonight his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States senator. His main opponent in the August, 1938, primary election will be the incumbent, Alben W. Barkley, of Paducah, senate majority leader.

The occasion for the Governor's announcement was the annual banquet of the Campbell County Chamber of Commerce.

The Governor indicated he would seek to confine the campaign to himself and Senator Barkley and state issues, and would not make President Roosevelt and the New Deal an issue.

Chandler implied, however, that he would not hesitate to attack the President if the latter undertook to interfere in the Kentucky campaign in Barkley's behalf.

The Governor sharply criticized Barkley, referring to him as "a stranger to the state" and a man who "has given the Kentucky the absent treatment."

Recalling his gubernatorial campaign promises three years ago, he said:

"We have set up the machinery to pay off the state debt, and have left the state in good order."

"We've got to undertake to pay the national debt and reorganize the national government," he added.

GOVERNOR CHANDLER.

NEWSMEN BARRED FROM FLEET TEST

War-time Secrecy Clamped on 'Highly Confidential' Pacific Maneuvers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(P)—The navy's forthcoming war games in the Pacific will involve a "highly confidential" problem and will be carried out under war-time secrecy, officials disclosed today.

They said that because of the confidential nature of this problem, Secretary Swanson had decided to bar newspapermen from the 150 fighting craft which will maneuver over a 12,000,000-square mile area from Alaska to Samoa and the Panama Canal for six weeks during March and April.

It was disclosed the maneuvers would be an attempt to solve "fleet problem No. 19," but no hint of its nature was given.

The secretary's decision to maintain absolute secrecy, officials said, was reached after conferences with Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of operations, and Admiral Claude C. Bloch, commander-in-chief of the fleet. Only interviews with Admiral Bloch before and after the maneuvers will be permitted this year.

Only interviews. Another manifestation of the navy's increasing policy of secrecy came from Rear Admiral William G. DuBose, chief of naval construction, in testimony today before the house naval committee.

He refused to give an unqualified answer concerning the speed of battleships in response to questions from Representative Brewster, Republican, Maine. However, he said all navies were "stepping up" the speed of their battleships and that those of the United States had a cruising speed of about 21 knots.

DuBose told the committee a separate fleet to defend the Atlantic coast would cost approximately $3,200,000,000 and take about 10 years to build. He supplied this information in response to a question propounded last week by Brewster.

Proposed 166 Warships.

DuBose said an Atlantic fleet should have 166 combatant ships and 53 auxiliary vessels, the fighting craft including 12 battleships, six aircraft carriers, 17 heavy cruisers, 18 light cruisers, 77 destroyers and 36 submarines.

The proposed $1,050,000,000 expansion program would bring the United States naval strength to 18 battleships, eight aircraft carriers, 26 light cruisers, 147 destroyers and 56 submarines.

Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, commented that this expansion would provide a fleet strong enough to protect both coasts from attack by any single power if the 3-5-3 ratio established by the 1930 London naval treaties was maintained.

He added that neither the administration nor the Navy Department was giving any consideration to construction of such a fleet as DuBose described.

WIFE OF GOMEZ CHARGES THREAT

Told Her He'd Commit 'Perfect Crime,' She Says.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(P)—June O'Dea Gomez, who is suing for a separation from Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, of the New York Yankees, accuses him of having told her it would be easy to make her the victim of a "perfect crime" by strangling her.

This accusation against the brilliant pitcher was included in Mrs. Gomez' complaint, which was taken to court today.

She seeks $200 a week temporary alimony and $3,500 counsel fees.

HIGHER EDUCATION HELD DEHUMANIZED

Ohio Professor Says System Unequal to Responsibilities.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 23.—(P)—Higher education in America is a "dehumanized jumble quite unequal to its social responsibilities," the American Council on Guidance and Personnel Associations was told today by Dr. William H. Cowley, professor of education at Ohio State University.

Three things have "depersonalized" education, said Dr. Cowley, and he listed them thus:

1. Fixed courses of study which force students to learn about things in which they have no interest.

2. "Mass education," which sets up a barrier between the student and the professors.

3. "German intellectualism," which he said insists that the only function of a college is to train the student's mind.

Dean Fred C. Smith, of the University of Tennessee, warned that the family as a recognized social unit was "being broken down by the paternalism of well-meaning organizations, agencies and clubs," and unless the schools proved their ability to meet current challenges "retrenchment is inevitable."

Oklahoma Pays Old-Age Benefits To Dead Men, U. S. Probe Reveals

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(P)—The Social Security Board heard from its investigators today that benefit checks had gone out to dead men because of loose administration of Oklahoma's old-age pension plan.

The board, considering cutting off federal funds for Oklahoma, is holding a public hearing on reports of maladministration of the state plan.

Board investigators also charged that pensions totaling $685,121 have been paid out without proper proof of the pensioners' eligibility.

That the state administration had bowed to the will of county authorities in some personnel matters.

In answer, Henry J. Denton, director of public welfare in Oklahoma, said the administration was trying to correct past mistakes as fast as it could.

So far, the federal government has given Oklahoma more than $8,000,000 for old-age pensions, nearly $1,000,000 for aid for dependent children, and $171,000 for aid for the blind.

Doctors Report Danger Past For Pershing

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 23.—(P)—General John J. Pershing's physicians disclosed late today the aging World War commander "has suffered acute damage to his heart muscles which will require prolonged rest in bed."

He is in no immediate danger, said Dr. Roland Davison, unless there is "a sudden change."

Dr. Davison said discovery of the damage to the heart muscles was the result of "additional observation of Colonel S. U. Marrietta and myself."

"We still feel that the outcome of his illness will be favorable," said an official bulletin.

Elaborating on the bulletin, Dr. Davison said: "The danger seems over now, but it is hard to say at present what the outcome will be. But unless there is some sudden change, he should make normal progress to recovery."

Colonel Marrietta nodded assent.

"The rheumatism is minor," Dr. Davison continued. "The heart is the important matter. The present illness is due partly to his age and partly because he is a man who has always overdone himself because the people of the United States made great demands on him."

No one was admitted to his room except doctors, nurses and his only sister, Miss May Pershing.

Slayer of Hound Picks Jail Cell To Paying Fine

RIPLEY, Tenn., Feb. 23.—(P)—

Jesse Frost, as stubborn a young farmer as ever worked a team of mules, the prosecution insisted, is doing time in the county jail because he squinted down the barrel of his trusty rifle some three years ago and felled a neighbor's hound.

Frost's arrival at the jail last week to begin his stretch in stir, as the eastern gangsters used to say, should have settled the controversy over the hound and Jesse's deadly aim, because, after all, Jesse didn't have to go to jail.

To 30-year-old Jesse, a farmer living over at the Double Bridges community, about 18 miles from here, it is a matter of principle.

A circuit court jury last week fixed the value of Neighbor Landry Boyers' hound at $30, and Judge Baptist fined Frost $5. These penalties, added to various court costs, left Frost owing $75.

The charge was "killing the domestic animal of another."

"Rather than pay the $75," said Sheriff Hamill, "Frost decided to serve 30 days in jail."

"The dog was breaking up my tomato vines when I shot him," Frost said from his cell. "He'd bitten me twice."

GLITTERING DEBUT IN CAPITAL SOCIETY IS MADE BY M'NUTT

Commissioner's Announcement He Is Not Candidate Fails To Deter Friends.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Two years in advance of the 1940 presidential contest, Paul V. McNutt, United States high commissioner to the Philippines and former Governor of Indiana, rolled into Washington today riding the crest of the most highly organized boom developed so far for the Democratic nomination for President.

(McNutt, the Associated Press said, stood for hours today greeting thousands of friends.)

(The scene was the blue and gold Chinese room of the Mayflower hotel. There, with the host and hostess, Senator and Mrs. Minton, of Indiana, McNutt was introduced to national political society.

Take 30 Hotel Suites.
(In the adjoining green and gold ballroom was a 45 foot oval table loaded with all the delicacies that tea-time ever saw and some which the maitre-d'hotel insisted, were distinct innovations. Four women, strategically located about the table, poured tea. In the main dining room, well patronized, more heavy liquids were to be had. Upstairs 30 and more suites were engaged by the Indiana friends of McNutt.)

The appearance of the tall, prematurely gray "Hoosier Roosevelt," still the master of Indiana's political affairs, was reminiscent of a presidential campaign year on the eve of a national convention.

The embryonic boom seemingly sidestepped the important possibility of President Roosevelt himself becoming a candidate for a third term.

Almost immediately after his arrival, McNutt, in a press conference declared:

"Not a Candidate."
"I am not a candidate for any public office. I am giving my time, attention, thought and energy to American-Philippine relations."

While that was the McNutt answer to the question—"Will you be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1940?"—it by no means reflects the activity that has been going on beneath surface in his behalf for some months and now bursting into the open.

There was, moreover, a lack of finality about McNutt's reply. This was emphasized a moment later when one of his interviewers suggested that perhaps his friends, who staged a mammoth reception in his honor late in the day, attended by 3,000 or more high government officials and members of congress, had put him "out on a limb."

"Never Put Me on Limb."
"My friends in Indiana have never placed me out on a limb," the quick-witted high commissioner replied. He spoke confidently and with a smile.

If his Indiana friends needed any encouragement in their drive, they could have had it in that answer.

"Are you in favor of a third term for President Roosevelt?" was the next political question asked.

"That's a question the President will have to answer for himself," said McNutt.

Roosevelt's supporters have taken it for granted that the President will not be a candidate to succeed himself.

McNutt revealed his visit to Washington would cover at least three weeks.

Questioned About Flight.
McNutt was questioned about his flight from San Francisco to Denver in an army airplane, which, it is charged, caused Colonel Davenport Johnson, his pilot, to be "sent to St. Helena" by McNutt's political opponents. Colonel Johnson was transferred from modern Hamilton field, Cal., to Chanute field, Ill., "graveyard of the air corps."

"I never was more surprised than on that matter," replied McNutt. He said that the appropriation for the office of high commissioner in the Philippines were made through and for the War Department. There was nothing irregular at all, he said, about his flying in an army plane.

THE TARIFF ON COTTON GOODS

Irrespective of theories about protective tariffs and free trade, there can be no disagreement, in the south at least, with the position taken by the Cotton Textile Institute opposing any tariff concessions on cotton goods in the proposed reciprocal trade treaty with Great Britain.

The south has been a sectional victim of the high tariff policy for decades, due to the fact that it's own products, especially raw cotton, have perforce been sold in world markets, at world prices, with no possibility of tariff protection. On the other hand the southern farmer, when he bought necessary equipment for his farm or supplies for his home, had to buy from manufacturers who enjoyed high tariff protection, thus increasing the price of their products. It has been estimated that more than 50 per cent of the money paid by the southern farmer for many of the manufactured goods he has to buy is actually tribute, through the tariff-increased price.

The tariff on cotton goods is comparatively low. Largely because of it, however, the wages paid textile workers are 145 per cent higher in the United States than in Great Britain. It also helps to maintain the price paid to the southern farmer for his cotton. Certainly, if that tariff was reduced, the cotton farmer would pay for the reduction in lower prices for his own raw product.

The tariff on cotton goods is one of the few benefits the south has received from the protective tariff policy. Small in comparison to the disadvantages that high tariffs as a whole have imposed upon this section, but it would be little short of catastrophic if that benefit were now removed.

The entire south is vitally interested in doing all it can to uphold the price of cotton and of cotton goods. Workers, farmers and all classes of society are closely concerned in the prosperity of every enterprise connected with cotton anywhere along its road from field to consumer.

Cotton manufacturers see real danger to their industry in any lowering of the present cotton goods tariff which would throw wide open the markets of this country to the manufactured textiles of Great Britain or any other country.

It would be the height of economic injustice to take away from the south one of the few tariff benefits she enjoys and to leave her still faced with the tariff-imposed disadvantages against which she has struggled for so many years.

FOR GEORGIA'S HEALTH.

The program announced for the meeting, this week, of the Georgia Public Health Association once more focuses attention upon one of the most important problems relating to the welfare of the state and its people.

Listed for discussion are venereal diseases, malaria, hookworm, typhus fever and maternal and child hygiene. The diseases listed constitute some of the most destructive foes that Georgia has to overcome.

Steady progress is being made in the campaigns to reduce sickness and mortality from disease in this state. Georgia is, in respect to some of these diseases, no worse off than other states and does not suffer as heavily as some. There can be no denying, however, that the ravages of malaria constitute one of the severest handicaps among all classes of people, while typhus fever takes a steady annual toll. To the venereal diseases Georgia, just as all other states, pays a terrific tribute. Fortunately, however, the old taboo against public reference to these infections is fast passing and the good effects of public knowledge are already being shown.

Georgia's record in maternal care has not been one for boasting. Far too high a death rate among women at childbirth is still a black mark against the state. The work of physicians, visiting nurses and others has improved this record of recent years, but there is still much to be done.

Such a conference as that to be held here this week cannot fail to contribute materially to the health advancement of the state for, as trained minds get together to exchange thoughts, knowledge spreads and experience grows more effective.

The AFL and CIO were so far apart at this writing, what surprises us is that somebody hasn't held out for two labor days.

FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Ill-kept vacant lots, which constitute not only a serious menace to community health but which offend the eye and detract from the pleasant aspect of their surrounding areas, are to be eliminated in the city of Atlanta, according to plans made by the city sanitary department.

At the recent session of the legislature a bill was passed giving the department authority to clean up such places and, after showing that the condition of the offending lot constituted a nuisance, bill the owner for the cost of the work.

There is no equitable reason why the owner of a lot which is in offensive condition should not be compelled to remedy the nuisance. Such lots lower the value of surrounding real estate and are oftentimes breeding places for disease-carrying mosquitoes and other pests. They cast an undesirable reflection upon the city as a whole, leaving unpleasant memories among visitors from other parts of the country.

There is nothing which more effectively advertises a city as a desirable community in which to live than attractive and beautiful streets, clean and pleasant residential sections. Vacant lots overgrown with weeds, besprinkled with rusting tin cans, littered with decomposing rubbish, are nothing but the visible evidence of a city with slovenly habits.

The movement to compel cleaning up of such lots has been actively sponsored by the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, of which Mrs. J. R. Little is president. That organization has already achieved much in its efforts for beautification and cleanliness of the city. Now, with the backing of the sanitary department in particular and the entire city administration generally, the campaign should move rapidly toward the goal of perfection set up.

The federation is due, also, thanks of the entire city for the large part it played in the successful effort to have covers provided for all city sanitary and garbage trucks.

Mayor Hartsfield on Tuesday issued a proclamation, drawing attention to the new law and urging property owners of vacant lots to cooperate with the sanitary department in making these places attractive areas instead of spots of shameful neglect.

GIVE THE FARM BILL A CHANCE

The first referendum on the new farm control act will be held on March 12, according to announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. The outcome will determine whether marketing quotas will be applied to cotton, wheat, tobacco and rice in 1938.

Farmers, legislators, merchants and many others have worked long and hard for crop control legislation, intended to insure greater opportunity and greater prosperity for the farmer. Their efforts have resulted in the enactment of a bill designed to give as many advantages as possible, on an equitable basis, to the men and women of America who till the soil.

The farmer's future has been left largely in his own hands. Some citizens of the farming regions may not like the control act which provides, among other things, that quotas of production will apply to crops this year unless, in the coming referendum, more than one-third of those participating vote against them.

This referendum will enable the American farmer in general, including the Georgia farmer, to register his opinion on the quota phase of the crop control law. His will be the opportunity to prove, by his ballot, whether his representatives in congress reflected the attitude of their constituents in voting for the law.

Every farmer qualified to vote should, on March 12, cast his ballot. If he does not, he will have little logical ground to criticize the farm act and its quota provisions. The democratic opportunity is provided for test of the workability of the act. Whether or not it eventually proves beneficial, simple fairness dictates that it should be fully tested in practice.

A STIMULUS FOR INDUSTRIAL ART

(From the New York Herald Tribune.)
For many years the Metropolitan Museum has carried on a stalwart campaign looking to the improvement of our industrial art. Through carefully organized exhibitions it has encouraged the manufacturers of furniture, textiles, wallpaper, glass, silverware and other things. This campaign has had inspiring repercussions and has undoubtedly had its effect upon the development of American taste. Now a singularly admirable contribution to the subject is made by Lord & Taylor, who have established four annual awards of $1,000 each to be made to industrial designers who have left their mark upon "the kind of merchandise" generally sold by the firm. The singularity of the scheme lies in the fact that it embraces not only decorative fabrics and floor coverings, but fashionable gear. It thus makes an effort to touch the widest possible fields in which an art-consciousness may be awakened.

Such an effort could not be staged upon a better scene than that supplied by a large emporium, where merchandise is frankly merchandised but where it is also seen to be, quite justly, touched by the grace of art. There, in a very definite sense, the designer and the consumer meet upon common ground, the needs and desires of the latter being met by the former, to the advantage of both. The horizon of the designer, often confined to his workshop, is appreciably enlarged. The buyer receives a new fillip to his interest. After all, the industrial designer cannot work successfully in a vacuum, isolated with his ideas and his tradition. The closer he gets to his public the better. It is to that principle that Lord & Taylor give a valuable stimulus.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

TAX-EXEMPT SECURITIES WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—In the fiscal purloins of the administration, excitement is rising again about the problem of tax-exempt securities. The temptation offered to the hard-pressed money-raiser of the Treasury by this great well of untapped revenue is all but irresistible.

Therefore, it is not surprising that a plan is quietly being worked out, in quarters close to the White House, for taxation of future issues of federal, state and municipal bonds. The hope is that, having been pretty completely purged of conservatism, the supreme court will reverse its old stand and approve statutory taxation of income from public securities.

The plan which is afoot is understood to be a streamlined version of the whole scheme suggested by Carter Glass when he was secretary of the Treasury. Glass, who hates tax-exempt securities almost as much as he hates unbalanced budgets, wanted to force owners of tax-exempt securities to declare the revenue from the tax-exempts as part of their income. Then he proposed rates on their salaries, dividends from other securities and other taxable income, high enough to amount to a tax on the tax-exempt.

The Glass plan was seriously considered by the subcommittee of the house ways and means committee now completing its revision of the tax laws. It was rejected on the theory that a constitutional amendment would be better, but the members were one way and another before taking the negative step. As things look now, a statutory attempt to attack the tax-exempt security problem should meet with a good congressional reception.

The idea of limiting the taxation to future issues is intended to improve the taxation's chances with the supreme court, and to minimize opposition from the mayors' lobby. This last, of course, would be strong in any case, and is the reason why a constitutional amendment is regarded as impractical.

THE TAX BILL'S FUTURE

Administration congressional leaders shake in their boots whenever they think of the new tax bill in the hands of the senate. It has been finished in workman-like fashion by able Representative Fred M. Vinson, of Kentucky, and his fellow ways and means subcommittee members. It is expected to go through the house with ease. And then it will land in the senate finance committee.

Unfortunately, Vice President John M. Garner, who had large voice in committee selections when Joe Robinson was senate leader, took care that all members appointed to the finance committee should be hard-shelled conservatives. It would not be too much to say that he and Chairman Pat Harrison conspired together to keep the committee safe.

As a result, the tax bill, with its radical "third basket" and other New Dealish provisions, must now run the gauntlet of such senators as Peter G. Gerry, of Rhode Island; Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia; and William H. King, of Utah. They may be expected to make an unholy hash of all the administration's pretty schemes, and they have even been playing with the notion of complete repeal of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes.

END OF THE LYNCH BILL

For once, an anti-lynching bill has been laid aside with the consent of Walter White, lobbyist of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People. The neat squeeze play was conceived by Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, leader of the forces against the bill, and put into effect by the senate leadership.

It involved, of course, the President's request for a deficiency relief appropriation of $250,000,000. Connally suggested to Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, that, since the relief measure was intended to feed the poor, the anti-lynch bill advocates might be driven to back down by Barkley, who has got to face a Kentucky primary this summer and enjoyed the lynch bill filibuster less than a month in purgatory, hurried off to Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, anti-lynch bill manager.

He put it to Wagner that prolonging the debate would lay the supporters of the anti-lynch bill open to the charge of starving the needy. Wagner, who had about given up hope for his measure anyway, agreed to get White's opinion of this danger. He went to White and told him that the future of the anti-lynch bill would be hopelessly prejudiced for the future if it continued to stand in the way of the relief appropriation. And White, who is a cautious fellow for all his energies, saw the point. Thus, the anti-lynching bill lost its place before the senate with his consent.

COCKY DEWEY

An entertaining and true story, beautifully illustrating the real nature of politics and politicians, is being told about the President and Tom Dewey, New York's excitable attorney. When Dewey, who has got to face emerging as a municipal St. George, his politics were not so definite as they are in these days of talk of him as a Republican possibility for many high offices. The President wondered then whether Dewey could be brought into the administration camp.

Accordingly, he sent New York Supreme Court Judge Samuel Rosenman, one of his closest intimates, to see Dewey. Rosenman, whom the President likes to call "Sammy the Rose," told Dewey of the White House interest in his career. He suggested that the New Deal would be glad to consider Mr. Dewey for some high office, and asked politely if there were any offices Mr. Dewey desired.

"Well, I tell you," said Dewey, cheerfully, "I'd take the attorney generalship. The Justice Department badly needs a good cleaning out."

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Breaking a rule of long standing, Silhouettes this morning devotes the column to a somewhat lengthy verse. Likewise, instead of the usual rhyme that appears at the head of the column, is omitted.

The verse to follow is taken from the Daily Express, newspaper of London, England. It deals with that well-known British propensity to go out and kill something when in holiday mood. The writer of this verse is, unfortunately, against the wanton slaughter of birds in the name of sport.

Of course the Britisher is well known for his propensity to publicize his own shortcomings and poke fun at his own faults. (See Gilbert and Sullivan.) But this verse could well be taken to heart by Americans. When Dewey was first known to the public, he was known as a lesson. Two Charlie Burroughs, a too infrequent correspondent of the columns, sent in the clipping from the Daily Express. Here it is:

Italians may be happy when they're singing foolish songs,
The Irishman may sing when he's righting Irish wrongs,
Americans are happy when they're being quite absurd,
But an Englishman is happy when he's bumping off a bird.

God made the birds for purposes we cannot share with Him,
He made them bright and beautiful,
But it hardly stands to reason that in making foul or brute,
He made them bright and beautiful for Englishmen to shoot.

The Frenchman finds his happiness appraising shapely legs,
The Chinaman likes proverbs and consuming ancient eggs,
With plottings and with counterplots the Russian soul is stirred,
But an Englishman is happy when he's bumping off a bird.

God made the birds for purposes we cannot share with Him,
Sometimes He made them comical, according to His whim.
The ostrich and flamingo, the duck-bill and the crane;
But he also made the English, who are rather more insane.

The Lapps and Finns find happiness amid the snow and ice,
The Eskimo eats candle-grease, and thinks it very nice.
The Japanese will kill themselves when honor is preffered,
But an Englishman is happy when he's bumping off a bird.

God made the birds for purposes (not yet revealed to us)
In one day less than seven days, without a silencing hymn,
But did He make the partridges, the pheasants and tomits,
And then contrive an Englishman to blow them all to bits?

FAIR ENOUGH If Willie Devours His Lunch at 10 A. M. He Must Go Empty at Noon

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Boundary Line KANSAS CITY, Feb. 13.—In the course of this pleasant visit to Kansas City, where the blackjack dealer sits at his kidney-shaped table flipping cards to the clients in plain view of the public and the law, gamblers suffer much from the cynicism of those who like to think the worst.

I gave expression to a little doubt one recent evening while visiting a resort called the State Line Tavern, a dance hall, bar and gambling house down in the cattle and railroad yards which straddles the line between Missouri and Kansas, with mischief and mirth on the Missouri side and nothing but morality and space in the few square feet where Kansas is.

There is some sort of lawing in process against the management of this tavern, so that clients of the tavern were crowded over the line one busy night when a goody throng was there and were caught feloniously casting dice on forbidden ground. A survey is being made and ere the thing is settled Missouri and Kansas may resort to arms again, as of old, to make war over a boundary.

The manager had turned over to an assistant the stick or crook with which the cubes are retrieved from where they fall and was explaining with gracious patience what folly it would be for a casino with a steady, high class trade like his to permit any tricks of magic with the cubes or cards.

Cientele

The cliente, incidentally, was composed in the main of men in overalls or other hardy apparel and seemed to be railroad laborers and freighters employed on the interstate truck lines. Some were scuffling around in the state by measures of the squint and spotty and bedraggled ladies to whom no formal introduction seemed necessary, but most were hanging around the crap-tables, and none, be it said to the credit of their intelligence, were playing the bird cage.

Incidentally, it is very bad form to refer to the stickman's stick as a crook—a word as shocking in the State Line Tavern and similar resorts as the word bloody in an English drawing room.

Loaded dice and don'ts, the manager declared, and all other deceptions are positively forbidden in his pastimes and for proof he proudly displayed a franchise which said that E. A. Gould, the exclusive purveyor of dice to the State Line Tavern, upon thorough investigation of the proprietor's character and the ethical standards of his place, had been pleased to confer this honor.

"This certifies," the document read, "that the State Line Tavern have complied with all the requirements necessary to receive this franchise, which is subject to withdrawal for cause at any time without notice. One thousand dollars will be paid to anyone who can prove that any dice bearing the signature of E. A. Gould are not perfect, trued dice."

Great American

It bore a gold seal with two red ribbons and the personal signature of Mr. Gould himself, a leading member of the gambling tool business, who is fighting to command for the game of craps, more truly than baseball, the American national game, the public respect and confidence which have been sacrificed to scurrilous innuendo and hearsay. He has composed a brochure, in which he declares that any club displaying his franchise may be patronized with full confidence that the character and integrity of the men in charge have been investigated and approved by E. A. Gould.

It was a reassuring lesson, but my confidence backslid somewhat next day when I learned that a friend had filched from a blackjack dealer, to whom he had loaned a deck of cards whose back design contained a subtle but distinct variation to distinguish the cards below No. 8 from those above.

Could this have been a slip of the printing press do you suppose? Because my friend insists that, dealing blackjack with this deck, he has a valuable clue to the size of his opponent's hole-card and a potent advantage in deciding how much he has to beat himself.

Perhaps it was a mechanical error, but if so, how would you account for a curious operation observed at a factory where a young salesman inadvertently led the way into a room marked "Positive" employees only, where a young woman with deft, sure fingers was busy making certain red ink marks on the back designs of hundreds of new red-backed playing cards?

I asked the young woman what these marks were for, but she giggled and wouldn't say, and the best I can do is hope that she was just touching them up for aesthetic reasons. I appeal to Mr. Gould as defender of a long-suffering trade. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

Farm Control Questions

The Constitution, in co-operation with the extension service of the University System of Georgia, presents here the second of a series of questions and answers designed to explain and clarify for Georgia farmers the recently enacted cotton and tobacco acreage control legislation.

Referendum.

Q. When will farmers vote on 1938 cotton quotas?

A. On March 12, 1938.

Q. Who will be eligible to vote in the cotton referendum?

A. All farmers who produced cotton in 1937.

Q. Who will be in charge of the voting in the cotton referendum?

A. The county committee. It will select a voting place in each community and will select three local farmers to hold the referendum.

Q. Will the ballot be secret?

A. Yes.

Q. If two-thirds of the farmers taking part in the referendum vote for cotton quotas, will they apply to states, counties and communities where they are not approved?

A. Yes, the cotton problem is a national problem and not confined to any state or county. Consequently, the quotas will apply wherever cotton is produced.

Q. How will the national cotton allotment be divided?

A. The national allotment will be divided among the cotton-growing states on the basis of the production of cotton in each state during the preceding five years, taking into account the acres diverted from cotton.

Q. How will the state cotton allotments be divided?

A. Each state's allotment in terms of bales is translated into acres and divided among counties on the basis of the acreage planted to cotton in each county during the years 1933-1937, inclusive, taking into consideration the acres diverted from cotton, but whatever additional allotment is necessary will be made to assure that no county shall receive less than 60 per cent of the sum of the acreage planted in 1937 and the acreage diverted from cotton under the 1937 program.

Division of Quotas.

Q. How will the county cotton allotment be divided among farms?

A. It will be divided among farms on which cotton has been planted in any of the past three years as follows:

All farms which have not planted and diverted as much as five acres of cotton in any of the three years, will receive as their allotments the largest number of acres planted and diverted in any one of the three years.

All farms on which five acres or more of cotton were planted and diverted in any of the three years, will receive as their allotments five acres and an additional amount which will bring the total allotment up to a percentage of the farm cropland (excluding acreages devoted to wheat, tobacco, and rice) which will be the same for all farms in the county, or administrative area. Provision is made for a small county reserve which may be allotted to farms receiving 5 to 15 acres under the above provision.

Q. Will farms producing cotton in 1938, but which did not produce cotton during any of the past three years, receive allotments?

A. Yes, a small reserve acreage will be available in each state to be divided among these farms.

Q. Is there a limit to the cotton acreage that may be allotted to a farm?

A. Yes, a farm on which cotton was planted in either 1935, 1936, or 1937 will not be allotted an acreage greater than the cotton acreage planted and diverted in any of these years.

Q. What is the marketing quota of the individual cotton farmer?

A. It is the cotton produced on his allotted acres, or the normal production on his allotted acres, whichever is the greater.

Q. Who is charged with the local responsibility for making individual farm allotments for cotton?

A. The community and county committees.

Woman Mystifies World After 14-Year Fast

Peasants Believe Her Stigmata Replica of Crucifixion Wounds.

KONNERSREUTH, Germany, Feb. 23.—Although more than a decade has passed since she began living the "miracle life" ascribed to her, Fraulein Therese Neumann still presents the world with an inexplicable mystery today.

The frail woman of 38, bearing on her body what her bewildered peasant friends believe to be replicas of the crucifixion of Christ—never-healing wounds on her hands, feet, side and forehead—is living here, apparently as healthy as ever. She has lived more than a decade, it is claimed, without food or water.

It was 14 years ago that Therese, then a slim young woman, began her now-famous fast from food. As the months passed and her peasant neighbors spread the word that she was living without food, hundreds began to come to see her. She disclaimed any desire for water after four days.

Looked Upon as Saint.

Yet, the populace believes she has fasted 10 years without losing weight.

After four years of the fast, during which she was examined and watched by some of Europe's most noted medical specialists, religious groups began to look upon her as a saint in her own right.

Strangely, at that time there appeared on her body the wounds which are not unlike those on Jesus the day he was crucified.

On her hands appeared two punctures, which are reputed to have never healed. Her side now presents a wide, red gash. Around her forehead (where Christ wore the crown of thorns) there appeared numerous small wounds, as if someone had pricked her skin with a needle. It is claimed that none of these wounds have healed in the years that have passed, although if she hurts herself in any other part of the body, the wound heals normally.

Woman Still Active.

Therese is as active today as she was when the stigmata first appeared on her. She walks slowly, saying the pain is caused by the stigmata on her feet. Aside from the fact that she is supposed to live in an ever-continuous state of total abstinence of any nourishment, she has tried to live normally.

Yet, thousands of devout Catholics, hearing of her fast and the stigmata, have not allowed the frail peasant woman to live her life of supposed saintliness alone. Her home has been made a shrine and near it an altar has been erected to Saint Therese of Lisieux.

"Miracle Girl."

Hailed throughout Germany as the "miracle girl," Therese is not in the limelight now as she was during the first few years of her strange new life. The Nazi government has put a quietus on those desiring to visit her.

Still, thousands of Catholics cannot be restrained from coming to this tiny town each Friday to see her. On each Thursday night at midnight, her trance supposedly begins and at 1 o'clock each Friday, the trance ends. During the time, blood flows from the wound below her heart, from the pricks on her brow and from her hands and feet. Her great eyes weep tears of blood.

The revered modern "miracle girl" of Germany, Fraulein Therese Neumann, who is regarded as a saint by thousands of devout Catholics, is shown above with a nun. The nun is holding the frail girl's hand, on which can be seen a never-healing wound, reputed to have been bleeding for ten years.

No description can do justice to the spectacle, which amazes all who see it. In this tiny town, the legends grow about her. To her is attributed the ability to speak all languages, to tell of the future, to heal the sick.

While the legend has grown, all attempts of scientists and doctors to find a physical explanation for her sufferings, or to prove her wounds and fast are other than genuine, have failed.

first public pronouncement since the fateful Austro-German "reconciliation" he will carry the popular support of more Austrians than at any time in his career.

Opposition leaders, including the former Socialists outlawed for years, swung to Schuschnigg's side as fear spread that the British cabinet crisis and Britain's shift toward the dictators cleared the way for German expansion in central Europe.

This fear was aggravated by reports of a tense political situation in France as result of Britain's decision.

Demand More Power.
Austria's Nazis, thousands of whom were released from prison only a few days ago under an amnesty decree growing out of Schuschnigg's Berchtesgaden conference with Fuehrer Hitler, of Germany, not only opened a violent campaign against Jews but demanded wider powers in the government.

Handbills were scattered throughout the country listing "minimum" Nazi demands, including half the seats in the cabinet. The propaganda also demanded, without mentioning it by name, the gagging of Schuschnigg's own Fatherland Front, which was Austria's only legal political organization until Germany's "pacification" coup.

Nazis in Styria and Carinthia provinces demanded a ban on "the political activities" of priests of all creeds—Austria is 95 per cent Catholic—and "radical suppression of all subhuman elements" with specific allusion to Jews, Communists and Socialists.

"We have conquered," said the handbills. "Soon Hitler flags will fly on all buildings. Surely Jews will last only a short time."

Boycotts Indicated.

There were spreading indications of incipient anti-Jewish boycotts, particularly at Innsbruck in the Tyrol.

Members of the government's Fatherland Front paraded today in small groups—also defying the ban on demonstrations—in support of Schuschnigg and Austrian independence.

What Schuschnigg's pronouncements will be in his speech tomorrow remained secret but it was reported the chancellor would emphasize:

1.—That he and Hitler reaffirmed Germany's acceptance of out of my pocket more than $400," he asserted.

Georgia's threat to crack down on liquor law violators brought the return of the speakeasy in Augusta after two years of open operation of bars on city "licenses" issued despite the state's bone-dry prohibition law.

The sudden caution here followed a visit by a group of men identified in grapevine reports as state inspectors.

Meanwhile, the liquor situation, thrust into the fore by passage of a county option bill at the recent legislative session, became a topic of political and other discussion.

Political circles here buzzed with talk that the dries would put a gubernatorial candidate in the field against Governor Rivers who signed, but did not sponsor or oppose the liquor bill. Some reports said Milton Fleetwood, Cartersville newspaper editor and director of a successful campaign against liquor in a repeal referendum in 1935, would be asked to make the race.

Fleetwood Surprised.

Fleetwood expressed surprise at the rumors and said: "This is the first I have heard of it." He issued a statement saying he had never thought of offering for Governor and that he had no plans "at this time" for the 1938 campaign, except those of an observer "on the sidelines." He did not elaborate on whether he would run if the dries asked him to get in the race.

Another county, Quitman, in southwest Georgia, arranged for a county option liquor election on March 11. Other counties which have called elections are Baker, February 21 (this one was enjoined by the dries and is the subject of the hearing to be held in Camilla March 12); Berrien, March 2; Upson, March 3; Dougherty, March 7; Evans, March 10; Muscogee, March 11; Pierce, March 12.

Prohibitionists indicated recently they would help local anti-repealists with legal battles against other elections, as they did in Baker county.

Petitions Circulated.

Petitions are in circulation in a number of other counties, including Fulton (Atlanta) and Bibb (Macon). Chatham (Savannah) county is expected to call an election next week.

The political talk about a possible "dry" candidate for governor brought this comment from W. W. Gaines, Atlanta lawyer and chairman of the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition:

"We are interested in somebody being elected governor who among other qualifications is an outspoke drier. I have no comment about individuals."

The talk included an angle that ex-Governor Eugene Talmadge might join hands with the dries in support of a candidate against Rivers but Lindley Camp, long-time friend of Talmadge, said he had heard "nothing at all about the report." Talmadge was at his farm and could not be reached for comment.

He went on to condemn the policy of those who would "slip from collective security into military alliances."

Plant-to-Prosper Campaign Urged by Dean Paul Chapman

Georgia State College of Agriculture Head Tells Augusta Kiwanis Club Farmers Should Join in Program To Create Prosperity.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 23.—Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, today advocated The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper campaign as a means of adding "materially to the wealth and prosperity of the people living in Georgia."

Speaking before the Augusta Kiwanis Club as a part of the program of the Twin States Livestock Association, Dean Chapman urged Georgia farmers to become active participants in the program.

"Every one who enters will receive a great deal of valuable information," he added. "I hope and trust that you will interest yourselves in this contest and do everything to encourage participation in it."

Speaks on Crop Income.

Dr. Chapman was speaking on "Increasing Georgia's Farm Income," the major objective of The Constitution's campaign in which the Atlanta newspaper has posted 33 cash awards, totaling $4,000; eight silver trophies and 577 other honors for Georgia planters who excel in a live at home program, diversification of crops, conservation of soil and making improvements to their homes.

He spoke at length stressing the problem of the Georgia farmer, urging every one of the objectives of The Constitution's program and emphatically insisting that Georgia farmers adopt a live at home program.

"All these points that have been emphasized in an adjusted farm program for Georgia are included as the basic essentials in the Plant-to-Prosper contest sponsored by The Constitution," he said.

Generous Prizes.

"The Constitution is providing generous prizes for farmers who excel in carrying out such a farm program as I have discussed, plus the making of certain home improvements."

"Such a program as is sponsored by The Constitution is directly coordinated with the objectives of the Twin States Livestock Association. It would seem to me highly desirable for the members of the Kiwanis Club of Augusta and the businessmen of this city and county to encourage the farmers in your territory to enter this Plant-to-Prosper contest. I am sure that many farmers in this section of the state would have a splendid opportunity of winning some of the awards that have been provided in this contest. But every one who enters will receive a great deal of valuable information dealing with an adjusted farm program along the lines recommended."

"I cannot commend this contest to you too strongly. It represents, I think, the very goals that we should seek to attain and I hope and trust that you will interest yourself in this contest and do everything to encourage participation in it. Only through such efforts will it be possible to add materially to the wealth and prosperity of the people living in Georgia."

FRENCH BODY RAPS ARMS EXPANSION

Secret Committee Plans Defense of Czechoslovakia Against Germany.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—(UP)—France's secret defense committee met today for the first time since the end of World War, to organize an $854,000 arms expansion program and lay strategic plans for the defense of Czechoslovakia against any German invasion.

The secret committee under former Premier Joseph Caillaux began its work as the cabinet sought to extract from Great Britain a pledge that, regardless of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's new deals with the German and Italian dictators, Czech sovereignty will be defended.

French Support.

Premier Chautemps, it was revealed, has served notice on Britain that she can expect France's support for a new western Lorraine pact—Britain, Germany, Italy and France—only in exchange for rigid assurances of Czech and Austrian protection.

France, the cabinet decided, does not intend to sacrifice her military allies on Germany's eastern border for the promise of a four-power appeasement and has no intention of giving Fuehrer Hitler a free Nazi hand in central Europe for a questionable promise of 10 or 20 years of peace in the west.

CZECHS FORTIFY FRONTIERS AGAINST SURPRISE ATTACK

wanted to wait until its demands were satisfied.

Chamberlain and the cabinet were thoroughly aware of a growing peril to the coalition government if they failed to match Premier Benito Mussolini's famous ability as a bargainer.

Chamberlain's new "talk with dictators" policy and the resulting resignation of Anthony Eden as foreign secretary brought from the Labor party and Trades Union Council a challenge that the government submit the issue to an immediate general election.

Government Holds Power.

The government now has more than double the strength of the opposition in the house of commons and a Laborite censure motion was defeated last night by 330 votes to 168.

As Chamberlain and his colleagues worked on instructions for Lord Perth, British ambassador to Italy, for the Anglo-Italian talks in Rome, political circles forecast an early approach to Germany on the lines of the bid for an understanding with Italy.

Diplomatic quarters restrained optimism over the possible success of Britain's new departure with Mussolini as they pointed out each side has a long list of objectives which, in themselves and in the order in which they were placed, offered obstacles.

Charged with the sole responsibility for a new era in Britain's foreign relations, Chamberlain, however, gambled on success in drawing Italy into a far-reaching plan possibly aimed at curbing Nazi expansion in central Europe through the binding restrictions of the long-dormant four-power pact.

Duce Sponsored Pact.

(Mussolini sponsored the four-power pact in 1933 but it has been almost a dead letter from the beginning. Its purpose was to associate Britain, France, Germany and Italy in common policies to protect European peace.)

It was considered in some quarters that that would be tantamount to smashing the Rome-Berlin axis, long a secret objective of British foreign policy, even under Eden.

Diplomatic reports from central Europe that with Italy's aid there was "still time" to prevent entire destruction of Austrian independence were understood to have reached Chamberlain.

journalists from all over the country.

John E. Drewry, director of the Henry W. Grady school of journalism, opened the institute and introduced President Harmon W. Caldwell, who welcomed the visitors in behalf of the University of Georgia. President Caldwell reviewed some of the accomplishments of the university during the past year and paid tribute to the Georgia editors "who created public opinion which made such progress possible."

Miss Emily Woodward, of Vienna, founder of the institute, referred to it as "my baby" and declared that "an informed press is of greater value to the state and nation than a great army and navy."

E. B. Braswell, publisher, and Hugh J. Rowe, editor of the Athens Banner-Herald, and Belmont Dennis, publisher of the Athens Times, welcomed the group in behalf of the Athens newspapers.

Following Etheridge's appeal for a Democratic government such as George Washington dreamed of, many of the visiting editors hailed it as an outstanding presentation. Etheridge formerly was managing editor of The Macon Telegraph. The speaker was introduced by Albert S. Hardy, editor of the Gainesville News.

Points to Answer.

"Our own stupidity and Bourbonism must be blamed if democracy perishes in the United States," Etheridge told Georgia's newspaper editors.

"The point I am making is that there is present in all revolts save that in Germany two important elements, economic repression and enforced illiteracy, with all its degenerating and degrading influences," Etheridge said. "Does not this fact point to the answer to the question, Shall we preserve democracy in America?"

"To me it gives the answer that we shall have it and that we shall achieve the original ideal of democracy in America in the same measure in which we alleviate economic conditions, restore individual rights and dignity and wipe out illiteracy—not in the sense of teaching people to read and write, but in the sense of teaching them how to live."

"National Jitters."

Harking back to George Washington and his "then radical experiment in republicanism," Etheridge reviewed briefly the economic history of the nation and said of the present-day United States, "We have got the national jitters and they are being intensified by reckless prophecies from all sides."

"It does not make so much difference what the name of the next President of the United States will be as it does that we regain our national sanity. It does not make so much difference whether the Republicans or the Democrats have control of this country as long as the powers which have control recognize the one immutable law of nature and of history: that there must be change and if there is not change to meet new conditions, there must be stagnation and death."

"I can recognize the legitimacy of the apprehension of those who profess to feel that we are taking leave of our sanity, that we are assuming burdens too stupendous for us to carry. . . . That apprehension exists always in the human mind."

People "Write" New Deal.

"I believe the forces that are moving toward a more democratic government and a more democratic social order in this country are bigger than men, bigger than parties, bigger even than governments that might try to stand in their way. Franklin Roosevelt was not the author of the New Deal; the people were its authors and he their belated instrument."

"The time is not now at hand, nor will it ever be at hand as long as we retain our national sanity and follow the law of change, when the measure of political democracy which we have enjoyed in the past will be endangered. But I contend that we have not had a democratic government in its finest sense in America. By its finest sense, I mean a democracy that is the free expression of a literate people, in the political sense, while implying to the individual at the same time the fullest measure of human dignity and self-respect in the social sense."

"How can we expect to have a government of reason when such a great percentage of our people, particularly in the south, cannot even read, much less understand, any interpretations of the func-

Jilting Signorina Must Repay Gifts

TURIN, Italy, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A Turin court today ordered Rina Boffa to pay back the sweetheart she jilted on the eve of their marriage for expenses he incurred.

The girl said she refused to go through with the wedding because Antonio Chlorino misrepresented his financial condition.

The court declared that was not a good excuse and ordered her to pay Antonio 4,600 lire for their engagement ring, 8,500 lire for a fur piece and 520 lire for wedding announcements, a total of about $681.

tions of government. Such people must always be the victims of demagogues who prey upon the one point of contact they have with the outside world—their emotions. And such people, when in the majority, must inevitably send to congress and elect as their governors the prototypes with which we are all familiar."

Sharecroppers Predominate.

Turning to the south again, Etheridge said that last year 45 per cent of southern farmers did not own the land they tilled, a good deal more than half the southern farm land is operated by tenants or sharecroppers.

"If you are inclined to brush the figures aside," he said, "and say of course that's a natural in states which have heavy negro populations, then remember that only 40 per cent or 700,000 of the 1,800,000 tenants and sharecroppers in the south are negroes and the percentage of negroes has been decreasing since 1920. From 1930 to 1935 the number of white sharecroppers increased by 10.1 per cent and the number of negroes declined by 10 per cent."

"I heartily believe that all steps and measures that have been taken to remove the stranglehold of concentrated wealth from the sources of the people's power; that all measures that have been taken to reclaim land that has been wasted in reckless exploitation; that all measures that have been taken to give people the right to bargain for their wages and their conditions of work; that all measures that have been taken to clear slums and wipe out tobacco roads of the south will make for a better and happier country."

"It is time for us who receive more from the federal government than we pay into it in taxes to consider whether Washington was not right when he advocated a strong central government able to deal with domestic problems as a nation rather than to cling to the bare bones of what we call states' rights."

The Press Institute will continue through Saturday with a number of speakers discussing various problems of newspaper editors in both the daily and weekly field.

New Tourist Playground Planned for Georgia Hills

Conference of Six States Points Out Possibilities of Developing Area.

A new vacation-land in the hitherto unexploited forest-covered highlands of north Georgia and her neighboring states loomed yesterday as the economic savior of the mountain folk.

Leaders in the move declared in Knoxville yesterday that the mountainous region encompassing parts of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina as well as Georgia is situated ideally to become the nation's next playground.

Representatives of federal, state and civic agencies in the six states laid the groundwork for an organization to promote and develop the highland recreational attractions as authorized last month at a meeting of the Southern Planning Conference in Atlanta.

With exploitation of the beautiful scenic wonderland of the southern mountains, these far-sighted planners hope to bring $500,000,000 annually in tourist business to the now comparatively impoverished area.

Recreational Spots. Under plans now being considered, among the Georgia attractions would be all current recreational spots of the northern counties, the state parks—Vogel and Fort Mountain—Neal's Gap, the territory around Lookout mountain and Rabun county.

Georgia would pay her proportionate cost of the advertising and promotion and in return receive her compensation from the added tourist trade.

"The people of the southern highlands can't live off themselves," Dr. Bennette Geer, president of Furman University at Greenville, S. C., told the leaders in Knoxville yesterday. "Development of recreational facilities to attract tourists in the best means of drawing income from the outside."

A survey by the Tennessee Valley Authority disclosed the areas having the greatest scenic attractions and playground possibilities had the lowest per capita incomes. "These scenic assets can bring up the people's standard of living," E. S. Draper, of the TVA, said.

The Southern Highlands Conference was conceived by Sam Brewster, Tennessee state commissioner of conservation, who pointed out that vacationers have tired of the playgrounds of the west and north and are looking for new places.

New England Model. The organization is to be modeled along the lines of the New England council, which has been successful in promoting the recreational facilities of the New England states.

While the organization would not develop the facilities itself, it would co-ordinate the work of various agencies in giving tourists new scenes for swimming, boating, fishing, hiking, horseback riding, motoring, golf and possibly winter sports.

The permanent organization is expected to be completed at sessions today.

Georgians attending the conference are Charles M. Graves, of Atlanta, state superintendent of recreational survey; R. F. Leonard, of Atlanta, National Recreation Council; P. J. Paxton, United States Forest Service, at Atlanta; P. W. F. Prater, of the United States Forest Service, Atlanta, and H. J. Wallace, of the Georgia State Park Service.

PARTLY CLOUDY, COOLE PREDICTED FOR TODAY

Atlantians will be greeted by partly cloudy skies and cooler temperatures this morning, the weatherman predicted last night. Rains yesterday drove the temperatures down and a low of 38 was expected this morning. Temperatures yesterday ranged between 44 and 50 degrees.

Despite approximately one inch of rain yesterday, the city is still in need of moisture, the weatherman revealed. The rainfall for February is three inches below the normal.

Ford Visits Edwards At Holly Bluff Cabin

MACON, Feb. 23.—(P)—Henry Ford, 74, made a "neighborly pop call" on aging Author Harry Stillwell Edwards (Aeneas Africanus) today at his home, Holly Bluff Cabin. The automobile manufacturer motored 200 miles from his winter estate at Ways, near Savannah, a year to the day after he first dropped in for an unannounced visit with Edwards, who is 82.

"It is a remarkable coincidence," Edwards said.

Ford has described "Aeneas Africanus" as "one of the best books" he ever read, and suggested the writer should be made poet laureate of the United States. It was written in 1918.

For luncheon there were blue-stemmed collards (a variety of kale), little sausages, sweet potato pudding and muffins. Collards are a favorite dish of both.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorder, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pain, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills. Used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Dewey L. Johnson was re-elected president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades last night at a meeting in the Labor temple. He was unopposed and has been holding the office since last year.

Other officers chosen were W. L. Millwood, Luther Pittman, W. A. Cetti and F. H. Puckett, vice presidents; William Van Houten, re-elected secretary-treasurer; Paul Chipman, recording secretary.

Johnson was also chosen to represent the organization at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor later in the year.

BAY STATE SENATE BEATS TEACHERS' OATH

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—(P)—The Massachusetts senate today voted 16 to 15 in favor of repeal of the much-debated law which requires teachers in all educational institutions to swear allegiance to the state and federal constitutions. The house of representatives has not yet voted on the measure.

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Peachtree chapel by the Rev. John Brandon Peters. Burial will be in West View cemetery, under the direction of Brandon-Bond-Condor.

Many of Her Friends Are Telling Same Experience, Says Mrs. Wellborn.

A resident of West End for 15 years, Mrs. N. C. Wellborn, of 825 Lee Street, S. W., has come out with the following statement: "About three months ago I got the flu and you know what that means. It left me with a terrible cough, inflamed throat and clogged up bronchial tubes. I tried several different remedies without relief. Finally a neighbor of mine recommended that I get Menthon-Mulsion. After taking only one bottle of it I was completely well of my cough and cold. Menthon-Mulsion not only did the work for me but its fig flavor makes it very pleasant to take. After having had such splendid results from Menthon-Mulsion myself I mentioned it to several of my friends and they, too, have tried it and all of them are very much pleased with Menthon-Mulsion. It costs us only 75c a bottle and all of us are recommending it to our friends."—(adv.)

INSTALLMENT XXXVII

"A whim, I suppose. But I'd like to think that, if there was a time ever that you needed anybody, you'd give me a chance. For any service whatever." He turned his head and she knew he was trying to see her face in the shadows. "Too much to ask?"

"No. It isn't too much. I promise."

Severance's shoulder was still touching hers. She felt his arm stiffen slightly. "You are being hunted," he drawled. "It's Mr. Cantine. I seem always to be caught when I have you to myself, don't I?" He stood erect as Terry approached.

"Is that you, Dad?" Cantine peered into the retreat beside the balustrade.

"Yes. Did you want me, Terry?"

"Only wanted to tell you that some of your guests are leaving. I've been trying to locate you."

"My fault, Cantine," Severance explained cheerfully. "I abducted Miss Vardell by main force and dragged her here—in fact, I've been making rather violent love to her. Beautiful night."

Terry's answering laugh had a hollow sound, Caradad thought. It was a ridiculous thing for Severance to say. And she was thankful it was so dark.

The last guests, uttering polite, if none too coherent, insinuations regarding a pleasant evening, had gone. Caradad, Gerta and Terry were left alone—"among the ruins," the latter remarked affably, fortifying himself with a final drink.

"A fine, large time," he decided. "I believe everything passed off very nicely," Gerta observed, with a suppressed yawn. Her slender, green-clad form reclined in the depths of an easy chair. "I'm frightfully tired. Are you ready to escort me home, Mr. Cantine?"

"I would be glad to have you stay with me tonight," Caradad offered dutifully. "You can sleep as late as you like in the morning."

"Oh, I think I'd better trot along to my own little nest," Gerta decided.

Terry put his empty glass aside and got to his feet. "I'm ready. I've got a lot to do tomorrow—today, I mean. If I don't get some sleep, I'll be in a bad way. I think we did ourselves proud to-night, Dad." He smiled to her. "I overheard a lot of little remarks—it's good to surprise you how popular this place will be. Well, I'll drop around some time in the afternoon and see how you're making out. Come along, Gerta."

After they were gone, Caradad dropped into a chair and sat lost in thought while Wilberforce moved about noiselessly, restoring chairs to their places and extinguishing the lights.

"Will there be anything else, ma'am?"

"No, thank you, Wilberforce. You may leave the light on the table. I will put it out."

Caradad sat gazing at the one burning lamp, wide-eyed. She was so weary that every nerve in her body seemed a taut and separate ache. Finally she rose and walked over to the table, then choked over an hysterical laugh that was more nearly a sob.

Terry having to get up early so that he could go to work. Terry saying he had overheard lots of little things. She had overheard, too. So had Mr. Severance.

John Severance. . . .

It was almost 5 o'clock in the afternoon when Terry, hollow-eyed but genial, appeared at Caradad's apartment. But he was not alone. His companions proved to be a Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose and a Mr. Snider. From the manner of their greetings, Caradad assumed they must have been among her guests the night before.

Caradad's toilet was studied through a leisurely loggnette, and conversation with Mrs. Ambrose was rendered difficult by the fact that good woman was distinctly bored with the world and most of its inhabitants. Terry contributed to an already strained atmosphere by carrying the gentlemen off to the little library across the hall for no apparent reason.

Wilberforce came to the rescue with the tea tray and a little later inquired if the gentlemen cared for refreshments. The subsequent sound of glass tinkling indicated that the gentlemen did. After what seemed an interminable lapse of time, the three left.

"Hope you didn't mind my dragging those chaps up here," Terry said affably. "I got them cornered here last night at the party for a few minutes but wanted another chance at them—suggested they drop around and have a couple of cocktails before dinner."

"It was all right, of course," Caradad answered quietly. She was standing at the window looking out and did not turn, as she asked casually, "Were you successful?" She was asking herself if Messrs. Ambrose and Snider were included in that "sucker list."

"Why, yes—pretty sure I'm going to land them." Then they were on the list.

Terry strolled over to the window and stood beside Caradad, his hands thrust in his trousers pockets.

"No use talking, Dad. That's the way to do business—never knew it to fail if you handle them right. I've never been able to do it the way I wanted to before. I've not been able to manage any really good clubs and there are a lot of fellows you can't get to an office and chaps you can't very well ask into a hotel bar. This was a swell idea of yours. We'll do some business—between us."

Caradad winced a little at Terry's direct way of putting it.

"Dad, that last cocktail sort of put an edge on my appetite. I could be badgered into staying for dinner, if you've anything in the chuck wagon."

"Oh, please do!"

After dinner, Gerta dropped in. "It was really funny," she laughed. "I don't know why those society reporters never get their stories straight. But they simply don't. Both papers I saw said that I was entertaining with you! Fancy." She turned abruptly to Terry. "And how did you make out with all the terribly important business you were going to do today?"

Caradad thought she sensed an undercurrent of expectancy in Gerta's voice. Nor was she reassured when Terry assumed that air of elaborate indifference, the one she so thoroughly disliked.

"Oh, just so-so."

Did Gerta know that tea-time conference was being planned? Caradad tried to dismiss the thought as quickly as it entered her mind.

"Don't forget you asked for it." That was John Severance's admonition when he had told Caradad last night about his "temptations." In the days that followed the housewarming, those words recurred so often to Caradad that they became something of a motto and helped her to accept the situation stoically.

Afternoons and evenings, her drawing-room—and the living room, hall and library—looked on as a place of a salon for the thirty, for idlers and good-natured gossipers. Terry put in appearance quite regularly before dinner and was unfailingly on hand if he had transferred his working quarters from Mr. Evans' office to her cozy library, but disliked to ask him.

For some reason, Gerta seldom appeared. And John Severance but once—to make his party call, he explained. It chanced that Terry was using the library at the time and Caradad had tea alone with her one and favored notable.

"Well!" he remarked quizzically, stirring his tea. "How is the society racket by this time?"

"Oh, I'm having a good time," Caradad assured him. "And speaking of rackets, has anybody tried to waylay you since that day in the country?"

"Of course not. Why?"

"It was a silly thing—I never told anybody. But, several times after that, when I was shopping, I had the feeling that some one was following me. Once, I was sure I knew who it was."

"Really?" Severance put down his cup and waited.

"The man I thought it was stood near me in a store, but I didn't get a good look at his face. Then the very next day, he was just behind me on State street in a crowd. I stopped suddenly and looked in a window and he had to pass me. I recognized the suit and hat he was wearing, but as soon as I saw his face—well, I knew he wasn't any gangster or somebody like that."

"How could you tell?"

"He looked so perfectly dumb and helpless."

"Just a coincidence, I imagine." There was an amused light in Severance's face. That would be a good story to pass along to some of his friends at detective headquarters. "Then you haven't changed your mind yet about—Australia?"

"But I didn't know there was anything to change my mind about."

"I tried to suggest there might be some danger of your being kidnapped. I thought you might have been following the matter up."

"Oh, no. I still would like to go there—to lots of other places, too. But I expect to buy a ticket when the time comes—at least go of my own accord."

"Well, I've been hoping that your resistance would show signs of breaking—about all this, I mean." He gestured at his immediate surroundings. "I'm sailing the second of September. From Montreal."

"That has a very final sound," Caradad told him slowly.

"I've already reserved a suite. I like the shorter crossing. There's still time for you to—make use of me in some capacity."

"Mr. Severance. . . ."

"The name is John—or should be by this time, I would think. My intimates, the few I have, usually call me J. S. The S. stands for the quaint name of Smith."

"Well, then, J. S., the color of your hair—Caradad's cheeks as she employed the name. "You have a peculiar way of saying things. Perhaps I mean of taking things for granted."

"But I admitted I was a bounder, didn't I? I'm getting so that I rather glory in it. I can't put it too plainly, but if by any un dreamed-of chance you—well, ever thought of Australia—I'd give everything I possess to be able to do something about it. In the perfectly orthodox way. Under the circumstances, that's about as far as I can go."

It was entirely too far, Caradad's heart told her. Oh, much too far. But there was so sudden a longing in the eyes watching hers that she could not manage the flippant answer that would have relieved her feelings. Any more than she could have summoned resentment against this man's seeming effrontery. Amazing effrontery. That's what it was.

"May I give you some tea?" she asked, when she was sure of her voice.

AYER ITAN TEMPLE.

"Who is this goddess?" I asked. "She is the goddess of mercy," said my guide, a Chinese resident of Penang.

We were standing before a shrine in Ayer Itan temple. The statue was dressed in cloth robes of golden brown color with a blue border. Near it were two other statues, and I was told these were images of the same goddess.

On each side of the shrine were scores of small wooden figures covered with gilt paint. "These figures," said the guide, "are images of the disciples of the goddess of mercy."

Not far from the shrine was a counter where several objects

(chiefly those where Chinese go to worship) money of this kind is burned. Those who burn it fancy they are supplying money to gods and spirits. If they aren't doing that, at least they are helping the temple for they pay much more for the "money" than the cost of making it.

Firecrackers were sold in the temple. They are not only sold but also are exploded. The guide showed me an oven, about the size of a small furnace. When the firecrackers are set off, they are tossed through an opening in this oven. No one was doing this while I was there, but I saw exploded firecrackers lying about.

Further up the hill on which this temple is built, I came to a pool almost filled with "holy turtles." About 200 turtles occupy the pool, and they are the gifts of Buddhists. The guide said one of the turtles had been in the pool 40 years. This may be true, for turtles are long-lived animals.

Climbing more steps, the visitor sees statues of the wind gods. They are not "good looking," but they are supposed to have power over the winds from the north, south, east and west.

All along the way to the pagoda at the top of the hill are images of Buddha. The pagoda is a high tower built in the Chinese style. It shines brightly with gilt paint.

Council's pay increase was approved yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield—reluctantly, he said.

The mayor said he did not believe council's salaries should be doubled from $50 to $100 a month, but that since it was a charter amendment adopted by the legislature and signed by the Governor, he was forced to sign it.

He expressed regret also that council Monday overrode his veto of a resolution exempting the department of electrical affairs from provisions of the budget law. The resolution has the effect of allowing the department to evade the budget rule of spending not more than one-twelfth of its annual appropriation in any one month.

"This means that the streets of Atlanta may be darkened when the appropriation runs out before the end of the year," he said. "Street lighting will have to be cut down then."

Charles Bright, of Polk county, was sentenced to pay a fine of $40 or serve six months in a public works camp for driving an automobile with no auto license plates, Judge F. A. Irwin, of Cedartown, asserted yesterday.

The judge said the charge of operating a car without license plates was the only one in the accusation presented before him.

Officials of the state highway patrol Tuesday gave out for publication the information that Bright was sentenced for not having a driver's license. Major Phil Brewster, director, stated he authorized release of the report under the impression it was correct.

Three highway patrolmen, who halted Bright when he failed to stop for a stop sign on the road between Cedartown and Rockmart, turned Bright over to Polk county authorities with the report that he had been driving without tags, a driver's license and without lights, Brewster said.

Judge Irwin said last night that Bright had not paid the $40 fine he imposed.

MANY A HARD-HITTING ROLE WALLACE BEERY HAS PLAYED FOR Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

"When you're behind the wheel of the new Dodge, you're experiencing the last word in flashing performance and lightning-like responsiveness. But what I really go for is a car that's siveness. But what I really go for is a car that's dependable—one that can take it. So I say I like 'em tough! And that's why I drive a Dodge!"
Wallace Beery

"I LIKE 'EM TOUGH!"

THAT'S WHY I DRIVE A DODGE... says Wallace Beery

STAR OF METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER'S "MEN OF THE WATERFRONT"

BRIMFUL
AND-GO!"

RIGHT you are, Wallace Beery...and when you fondle the wheel of this big, new Dodge, you're the "top-kick" pilot of the roughest thing on wheels!

Tough? You bet—from its battleship frame, to the walls and roof of steel that spell last-word SAFETY in the way that really counts.

But ruggedness isn't all. There's something excitingly new about this greatest car Dodge ever built. Hop in and we'll try it together. Step on the gas, and zoom!...you're away like a greyhound on wings! No back-talk, no engine dawdling. Here's power that's eager to go...riding ease that craves long miles of highway to show you what road comfort really means. And the handling? Gentle pressure swings her haughty nose where you're going. Tail-wag and wander are out. She clings to the road...hugs the curves with the ease of maneuvering the straight-aways.

And Dodge demands so little gas and oil. One owner calls it "a gas miser deluxe." Another says, "I'll save $97 this year on gas, oil and upkeep!" It's money in your pocket every day you drive it.

EXCLUSIVE! NO OTHER CAR IN THE WORLD has both the famous Red Ram engine and patented Floating Power engine mountings! With all its background of engineering genius and fine precision manufacture, this engine is the heart and soul of the greatest car performance your money can buy today!

AND NOW
PRICE!

Don't let all these great Dodge features scare you a bit about price. In fact, owners say Dodge is the best-priced car in America. So, if you're thinking of paying more money for a car, remember this: Dodge actually costs hundreds of dollars less than some cars that do not give you as much. Or, if you think your purse-limit is one of the smallest cars, forget it. Dodge is priced so close to the low-priced cars that owners say you'll hardly notice the difference as you pay! Get your dealer on the phone right now. He has the facts and figures. Both you and your pocketbook are in for the surprise of your lives!

VIRGINIA ASSEMBLY GETS 92 NEW BILLS

Proposals Include Statewide Referendum on Sales Tax; Budget Measure Today.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 23.—(P)—Ninety-two new bills and resolutions, including proposals for a statewide referendum on a sales tax and for an "actuarially sound" teachers' retirement plan financed by a tax on soft drinks, were introduced in the Virginia legislature today, the last day on which bills of a general nature may be offered.

The senate postponed consideration of the old-age assistance and relief bill until tomorrow, when the house has the $160,000,000 biennial budget bill set as a special order of business.

MISSISSIPPI SENATE VOTES TRAFFIC BILL

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 23.—(P)—The senate approved a bill today setting up rules and regulations governing traffic while the house voted unanimously to raise income tax exemptions "to benefit the little fellow."

The "rules of the road" bill was passed by the senate by the vote of 25 to 15.

Two bills were approved governing the income tax changes. The first would raise exemptions to the same level as the federal law. Personal exemptions for single persons would be raised from $750 to $1,000 and married persons from $1,500 to $2,500. Exemptions for each dependent would be raised from $200 to $400.

The Clipper arrived over its base at 10 a. m., but was forced to remain in the air because of the fog. Eleven passengers were aboard.

PRESIDENCY DECLINED.

EMPLOYMENT

J. D. BAZEMORE

If Bazemore's opponents are defeated in the election for Sheriff March 2, they and their tickets of Deputies will go back overnight to their present jobs, none the worse for their defeat. But if Bazemore is defeated, he and his Deputies will go out overnight to hunt for jobs.

If either of Bazemore's opponents is elected, he will go in office overnight in complete ignorance of the technical and intricate duties suddenly placed upon him, and his Deputies likewise.

While they learn their duties, the public business must wait, the Courts must wait, the entire operations of this department of the County must be converted into a training school, at the expense of the taxpayers.

Bazemore and his men are experienced and trained. They are giving good and satisfactory service. They ask your vote on their RECORD.

Bazemore's opponents and their men are inexperienced. They ask your vote on their PROMISES and nothing else.

This is your business, and it's important business.

Atlanta Praised for Its Prospects
By Lewis Pierson, New York Banker

Says City Should Grow and Go Forward Year
by Year.

Praise for Atlanta as a city with "wonderful prospects for the future" was expressed here yesterday by Lewis E. Pierson, of New York, chairman of the board of the Irving Trust Company and one of the nation's leading bankers.

Mr. Pierson, who motored here from Augusta to visit friends, was guest at a luncheon yesterday at the Capital City Club.

"Atlanta is truly the metropolis of the south," he said. "Here are wonderful people, wonderful prospects. The city is in a state that has been blessed with a variety of the goods things of nature. The city should grow and go forward year by year."

Mr. Pierson, a former president of the American Bankers' Association, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association of New York, declined to comment on business conditions, politics or new deal legislation.

"I'm here just as a part of my vacation trip to Augusta," he said, "and I'd like to forget business for a while." He said he will remain here over night. He will be guest at another luncheon today.

He concluded by saying, "Atlanta is fortunate in its bankers. Some of the ablest men in the field are in this city."

LEON D. GREEN'S RITES SET FOR THIS MORNING

Funeral services for Leon D. Green, 47, of 24 Moreland avenue, N. E., who died Tuesday night in a private hospital, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in the Inman Park Methodist church, with the Rev. Fred L. Glisson officiating. Burial will be in Marietta cemetery, under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Mr. Green was connected with the Atlanta & West Point Railroad until ill-health forced his retirement about 10 years ago. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and the American Legion.

SCHOOL RECEIVES BUST OF MOINA MICHAEL

A miniature bust of Miss Moira Michael, beloved "Poppy Lady" of Georgia, stood yesterday in the library of the Brookhaven school, having been presented by the Asa Warren Candler Unit of Post No. 65, American Legion.

Miss Michael was introduced at a George Washington birthday party Tuesday by Mrs. A. L. Henson, later autographing a placard for the unit. Members of the auxiliary on the program included Mrs. Henry E. Sandford, Mrs. W. R. Gilbert and Mrs. J. C. Anglin, president of the Brookhaven unit.

AIRMAN FORCED DOWN IN CORNFIELD AT ROME

ROME, Feb. 23.—Forced down by poor visibility, two aviators awaited better weather conditions here today before continuing their flight from Key West, Fla., to Racine, Wis. Landing their plane in a cornfield near the Tubize mill village late yesterday, John L. Lindsey, of Racine, and G. H. Jackson, of Chicago, escaped injury.

Circling low over the city several times, the fliers failed to find direction to the city airport. Lindsey said he and his companion decided to land when flying conditions became bad after they left Atlanta.

MILITARY OPPOSES DRAFT-RICHES BILL

Morgenthau Also Objects to Measure at Hearing by Senate Group.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(P)—Three departments of the federal government—the Army, the Navy and the Treasury—voiced their opposition today to a bill sponsored by Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma, to draft the nation's wealth in the event of war.

Assistant Secretary of War Johnson, in a letter to a senate military affairs subcommittee conducting hearings on the bill, declared "it is the belief of the War Department that any war, to be prosecuted successfully by this nation, must have the support of the people, financial as well as moral and physical, and that with such support, forced loans such as provided in the (Lee) bill would not be necessary."

In a similar letter the Navy Department said that "under the bill serious delay in the final determination of the wealth and consequent obligation of each individual would be inevitable."

Secretary Morgenthau, of the Treasury, said that while "I am strongly in favor of eliminating all profits of war, I am convinced that this purpose cannot be accomplished through the methods proposed by the bill under consideration."

Junior League Provisionals Edit 'Boll Weevil' Issue of Magazine

By Sally Forth.

WHEN the next issue of the Atlanta Junior League "Cotton Blossom" rolls off the press and is circulated to its members tomorrow morning, they will be charmed with the clever work that the provisional members have done in publishing this—"boll weevil" issue. Since the day Louise Cramer, "Cotton Blossom" editor, turned over this month's number to the new members, they have worked feverishly and tirelessly to publish a knockout "Cotton Blossom" with a redesigned cover and everything.

On the efficient editorial staff of this issue are Clara Haverly, boll weevil; Mrs. Walter Colquitt Jr., co-boll weevil; and Alice Davis and Mary Malone, art weevils, with other provisional members of the League as assistant weevils.

One of the cleverest articles in the magazine will be "The Menace," the editorial in which the provisionals, who do not become full-fledged members of the League until June, give the evolution of a debutante into a Junior League, and bemoan the fact that they have completely lost their identity in the maelstrom of the busy Junior League.

It is Sally's bet that after the "conservative members"—as the "boll weevils" choose to call the "old-line" Leaguers—see the evidence of this latent talent in the current issue of the "Cotton Blossom," they will begin to sit up and take notice. The "Menaces" will no doubt be in line for many congratulations when the members gather at their monthly meeting at the Piedmont Driving Club on Tuesday, and when, incidentally, the Junior League three-year welfare plan will be discussed, and straw ballots will be cast for president for the coming year.

ACTRESS Miriam Hopkins, it seems, is the unanimous choice of the eastern seaboard to play the part of Scarlett O'Hara in Margaret Mitchell's sensational novel, "Gone With the Wind." In fact, the lovely blond star is such a favorite for the role that several states have come forward to champion her selection and to share the reflected glory with her native Georgia.

For instance, Fredericksburg, Va., claims her as a great-grandchild and has issued her an invitation to visit the home there of her distinguished ancestors, with elaborate plans made for the occasion. Upon her arrival, she will be met and introduced by the Governor of Virginia and the mayor of the city, and a brilliant reception will be given in her honor at the lovely old Princess Ann street home of the Middletons, Miriam's great-great-grandparents.

There in the very same drawing room where her great-grandfather, Major James Edward Dickinson, married Ellen Carmichael Middleton, she will meet the descendants of the Washingtons, Crutcheffs, Carmichaels, Dickinsons, Middletons and Mauryss who were her ancestors. She will be the guest of Fredericksburg and the Kenmore association, and she will be a guest of honor visiting the home of Mary Washington.

After the death of George Washington's mother, the home was purchased by Miriam's great-grandmother, Mrs. John Dickinson, and the Dickinsons lived in the home until 1874. It was then sold to the government for a shrine. Major James Edward Dickinson was an officer in the Confederate army, having enlisted in 1863 in Company A, 29th battalion of Georgia cavalry, commanded by General Hood, of "Gone With the Wind."

MEN LOVE

Peppy GIRLS!

If you are happy and peppy and full of fun, men will take you places. But, if you are cross and always tired out, men won't like you. Men don't like "quiet" girls. They want girls who are full of pep.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening discomforts from the functional disorders which women endure in the three or four years of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Pinkham's Compound, made especially for women from Nature's wholesome herbs and roots, has helped women for over 60 years.

Make a note NOW to get a bottle today WITHOUT FAIL from your druggist—let Nature help you be the lively, peppy girl you should be.

Miss Louise Adcock and Mr. Head Are Married at Baptist Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Louise Adcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Adcock, to Hoy F. Head, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Head, of Atlanta, was solemnized last Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Baptist Tabernacle with Rev. J. E. Cobb officiating in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends.

The vows were spoken before an altar banked with palms and ferns interspersed with seven-branched candelabra holding white cathedral tapers and floor baskets filled with pink gladioli and white lilies. The pews were marked with clusters of white lilies.

The groom chose Floyd Head, his brother, as his best man. Ushers were Dennis Adcock, brother of the bride, and Heflin Hargett. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Aileen Adcock, who wore a street length model of navy lace with matching accessories and her bouquet was of roses and valley lilies.

"Time" Managing Editor Urges Diversified Farming

Says South's Future Lies in Program To Aid Growers.

"Reporter, not an economist—" In characteristic style, Frank C. Norris, youthful managing editor of the magazine Time and one-time Atlanta resident, thus described himself here yesterday.

"The south's future lies in a diversified farming program, in my opinion, but then that's the same thing all your agricultural schools are telling you," he declared.

Norris said that, as a newsman, he knew where to find the best opinions of the day, but he declined to make personal observations or expound on any of his own pet theories, if he has them, for salvation of the south.

Urges Publicity.

"I think the proposal to publicize the southern highlands' recreational resorts very good and should bring money to a needy section," Norris commented.

There his theorizing on the south's future ended, but not his talk of southerners. The stories carried by Time, and newspapers throughout the nation, about the Robert E. Lee memorial stamp controversy last year attracted more correspondence from southerners than any story printed by the magazine, Norris revealed. The controversy flared over the number of stars, indicating rank, on the Confederate commander's collar.

Well Informed.

"Southerners are exceptionally well informed on the history of the War Between the States," the young editor said. "Few northerners bother about the history of the war. All the comments we received about the Lee stamp revealed a thorough knowledge of the history."

But he offered no explanation of what he thought southerners read most avidly in his publication.

Norris and his wife were in Atlanta yesterday with the former's father, Ernest E. Norris, president of the Southern Railway system, who is on an inspection tour. They talked with newspapermen in the president's private car.

RED ARMY MARKS 20TH ANNIVERSARY

Secret Execution of Two Admirals Reported.

MOSCOW, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's huge red army celebrated its twentieth anniversary today in a blaze of martial spirit, accompanied by the disclosure that purges had made further inroads among its officers.

A new vice commissar of defense appeared in the person of General Ivan Fedko, former chief of staff in the Far East, who more recently was commander of the Kiev military district.

It was learned he has replaced A. L. Yegorov, who succeeded Marshal Mikhail Nikolaevich Tukhachevsky as vice commissar when the latter was executed along with a group of other allegedly disloyal officers.

The secret execution of two former commanders of the Soviet navy was disclosed in published versions of a speech by Commissar of War Klementi E. Voroshiloff. The two were Admiral Vladimir R. Orloff and Admiral A. K. Sivkoff.

COURT FREES GIRL WHO SLEW FATHER

Parents of Dead Man Join in Leniency Plea.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Eighteen-year-old Dorothy Schaefer, who stabbed her father to death six weeks ago, was sent back to her family and is singing today after the dead man's own parents, fellow church workers and prosecuting officials had joined in a dramatic plea for leniency.

Heeding the pleas, Judge Kinkead suspended sentence on a manslaughter charge and paroled the pretty, blond singer in the custody of her mother and paternal grandparents.

Charles Schaefer, 49, was killed last January 6 when Dorothy and other witnesses said, he threatened her and her mother in a drunken drive.

Among those who attended were Colonel J. E. Spingarn, of New York, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and James Weldon Johnson, of Nashville, Tenn., professor of creative literature at Fisk University.

NEW 'PUBLIC ENEMY' SOUGHT BY G-MEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover added to his list of "public enemies" today the name of Raymond (Whitey) Duval, sought for participation in the $40,000 robbery of the First National Bank, South Charleston, W. Va., February 19.

The director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation asked law enforcement officers and agencies throughout the country to be on the lookout for Duval.

"My job is to report economic theories, not make them," Frank C. Norris, one of the two managing editors of the magazine Time, was saying when the photographer snapped this candid camera shot of him and his wife. The picture was taken in the private car of Ernest E. Norris, president of the Southern railway system and father of the editor, just before their train left the Terminal station for Jacksonville.

CAPPER URGES U. S. TO SHUN WAR TALKS

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—"The United States should strictly mind its own business and should take no part in any consultations relating to any threat of war in Europe or elsewhere where our vital interests are not affected," Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, declared in an interview.

"We had one experience in fighting other people's wars," continued Senator Capper, "and the present situation in Europe shows the utter futility of such efforts. We must never again permit American boys to be sent to fight foreign wars that do not concern us."

Senator Capper, a member of the senate committee on foreign relations, believes it would not be advisable for the United States to consult with other nations with reference to disputes that do not involve a vital interest of this country.

"We must be ready and willing at all times," said Capper, "to co-operate with other nations to remove the causes of war. We should particularly be ready to co-operate with the democratic nations and to work for the preservation of democracy throughout the world. But we must be cautious. Such co-operation on our part need not be permitted to drag us into foreign wars. We should in no event participate in economic sanctions against foreign nations, especially Fascist powers."

Senator Capper favors a strong national defense and advocates a navy adequate to defend both coasts of this country. But the navy should not be strong enough to carry on successful operations in Asiatic waters or in other foreign regions, he said.

Asked whether the navy should be used to protect American trade and other economic interests in China, Capper replied in the negative.

Priest Is Indicted On Lottery Count Over Aid Contest

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Father James R. Cox, who once led a "hunger" march on Washington, was indicted with 13 other persons today on charges of conspiracy and use of the mails in furtherance of a lottery.

The charges grew out of a $25,000 contest to choose a name for the monastery gardens of old St. Patrick's church of which Father Cox is pastor.

Two defendants, B. J. Clifford, of Cleveland, and Thomas A. Harkins, of Pasadena, Cal., were named by United States attorneys as promoters of the contest.

The contest was operated for the benefit of St. Patrick's relief fund, from which Father Cox fed as many as 3,000 daily during the depression.

Postal inspectors charged the "prize winners" did not receive their money and that prizes were awarded to relatives, friends and workers in the contest under assumed names.

Father Cox defended the contest as a charity venture and claimed he had been told by Postmaster General Farley it was legal.

Chatham's Eye Is All Right; Bringing Contract to Camp

BUSTER SEEKING TO CONTINUE HIS 'IRON MAN' ROLE

Jim Trexler Arrives at Ponce de Leon; Is Outfield Candidate.

By JACK TROY.
Buster Chatham can continue his playing career as shortstop for the Crackers this summer. The little iron man wired President Earl Mann yesterday that "Eyeball was not touched and everything fine so far. Was plenty lucky. Regards, Buster."

Chatham was chopping wood last week at his home in Waco, Texas. A chip flew up and hit him in the eye. And there was no way of telling how badly damaged was his eye until the bandages were removed. They were removed yesterday and little Buster promptly wired Mann the good news.

Buster hasn't been out of the Cracker lineup for almost two seasons and a half—and he hopes this summer to continue his streak of consecutive performances.

He will bring his contract to camp.

RICHARDS ELATED.
Manager Paul Richards was at the park when Chatham's wire came, and heaved a great sigh of relief. "I'm sure glad Buster is all right. He's one of the best shortstops and will be very helpful to a young second baseman. Al Rubeling probably will pair with him."

Jim Trexler blew in from Richmond, Va., on the wings of a sharp wind yesterday. "Drove through rain most of the way," reported the stocky left-hander, who will be tried in an outfield role at Savannah.

"Have worked all winter as a plasterer and think I'm in pretty good shape. I weigh almost 170."

HE CAN HIT.
Trexler is a hard-hitting left-hander, and showed possibilities as an outfielder last season when he subbed for Marshall Mauldin. He has been inclined to be a bit wild as a pitcher. He has a strong throwing arm.

Manager Richards may see fit to use him as a utility outfielder and pinch-hitter. It all depends on how things work out at camp.

The advance guard of the Crackers will depart Sunday for Savannah and may do a spot or two of work on Monday, although official practice for batters does not begin until Tuesday.

Dutch Leonard was out at the park yesterday and desires a ride to Florida. Anyone driving to Florida either Sunday or Monday may get in touch with Leonard by calling the ball park office.

'Y' MAT MEETS SET SATURDAY

Two wrestling tournaments in one will be held at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday. The State Y.M.C.A. and also state open championships will be held joint.

According to the state Y.M.C.A. eligibility rules only one man in each of the eight weight divisions is allowed to enter the state "Y" tournament. Since Augusta and Columbus Y.M.C.A.s are the only other opposition the local "Y" has in the state "Y" tournament it was decided to hold the state open tournament also, and put the state "Y" tournament in one bracket and the Open tournament entries in the other bracket. The finals of the "Y" meet will be the semi-finals of the open meet in one bracket.

Tech High, Young Harris College, West Georgia College and a number of independent wrestlers are expected to enter aside from the Augusta, Columbus and Atlanta Y.M.C.A.s.

All entries must be in the hands of Oscar Brock, "Y" athletic director, by Friday 6 p.m. Matches will be held Saturday at 10 a.m., 2:30 and 8 p.m.

Emory and Florida Swimming Put Off

Compulsory vaccinations at Emory University and their reactions caused postponement of the swimming meet scheduled for yesterday between the Florida 'Gators' and the Emory tankmen.

The Florida team defeated Tech, 54-21 Tuesday night. Monday they trounced Auburn, 68 to 7.

Today the 'Gators' travel to Athens to meet the Georgia Bulldogs.

Gill Better Holdout Than Duke--Engel

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 23.—(P)—Joe Engel, wise-cracking president of the Chattanooga Lookouts, believes in his ball players. Questioned today concerning a rumor he would trade Holdout Johnny Gill to Nashville for Holdout Willie Duke, Engel said "Of course I won't trade Gill for Duke—Gill is the better ball player."

"Why, I'll even bet he holds out longer than Duke," added Engel.

They're an Honest People---Even the Taxi Drivers Have Change

STOCKHOLM, Sweden.—(By Mail)—Now and then, the Lady who is traveling with me, takes a look at your reporter's waistline and says, "Well, they were right. Travel certainly is broadening." Nevertheless, I have discovered that most newspaper people look alike.

It was still dark and quite cold when we arrived at Stockholm early one morning. There was a strike on in all the hotels and cafes but a policeman told me a small konditori near by was selling coffee and cake. So, we went there. It was near the corner of a large morning newspaper plant and the pressmen and the composing room force were pouring in for coffee. The final editions of the morning papers here go to press at 5 o'clock each morning. It was about 7 o'clock when we went in.

They looked so much like the members of The Constitution composing room and press room staffs that I could almost call some of them by name. There was one little man there who looked like The Constitution's Bill Turner, even to the well-chewed, unit cigar. And so help me if, by dint of finding one who spoke English, it didn't develop that this man was foreman of the press room. Later on he lit his cigar. Mr. Turner has been with The Constitution for almost 60 years and is never without a cigar and has yet to light one. With the cigar lit this man looked less like Mr. Turner.

It sounded strange, hearing an alien tongue, and they looked so much like our own people.

It made me a bit homesick, being there. They had papers with them—papers just off the press. They had that warm, inky smell. I sat back and breathed it in very deeply. The place looked a bit like the palatial United Lunch Room but the young lady waitress was prettier than George Hanjars.

DEPARTMENT STORE TIP.

The Nordiska Kompaniet is the largest department store in Stockholm and it is a very fine one. It has one custom which intrigues no little.

Dogs are not permitted in the store. But, at the entrance, there is a wide space between the two big revolving doors. And there are mats and pans of water and places to tie a lead. At any time one goes in, there are a half dozen dogs tied there, waiting for their owners to come out. There would be Scotties and Cairns and Schnauzers and Great Danes tied there along with a few Dachshunds. It was a very cute sight and the attendants they had seemed really to like dogs. The dogs, for some reason, staged no fights. They just sat there and looked cute.

I pass this suggestion on to my department store friends in Atlanta.

There was one very odd experience in the Nordiska Kompaniet. The lady who is traveling with me has been buying little odds and ends such as Swedish and Danish and Finnish and Norwegian dolls and iron candlestick things and it became necessary to go purchase another bag. There was a cheap one in the window at 17 kroner.

So, I went in and the gentleman said it was a fine bag. "Is it," I said, "strong enough to last a trip back to Copenhagen?"

"Yes," he said, "but I have a stronger one here of the same size."

"How much is it?"

"Only 15 kroner."

"It's a better buy than the 17-kroner bag?"

"Yes, sir, it is."

The Scandinavian people are painfully honest. Even the taxi drivers all have change.

A NEWSPAPER MAN.

Just for fun, I would like to introduce a newspaper man. He is Mr. Anders Byttner and he is a political columnist, feature writer and editorial writer for Nya Dagligt Allehanda, of Stockholm, Sweden.

I want to introduce him because he will serve to illustrate a point and because he is one of the nicest people I have met in the foreign newspaper offices among many nice people.

He speaks six languages fluently and four more fairly well. He reads 15 languages with fluency. The newspaper men in Scandinavia, those in editorial positions at least, have to know something of languages. So, they know all three Scandinavian languages, Russian, English and French, and a few more.

In Mr. Byttner's library I found Miss Peggy Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," at least a half dozen books on economics, the same number of political developments in America and in England; many books in Russian, French and the Scandinavian languages and so on.

He embarrassed me with a knowledge of American affairs, even to statistics, which should have been in my possession and was not. He called, three days before it happened, the events in Germany in which Herr Hitler chose between the radical Nazi party and the army. He and your correspondent became fast and immediate friends because of a mutual liking for certain cheeses and foods.

There is a great free masonry among newspaper men all over the world, or at least that small portion of it which I have found. The press in Scandinavia is a free press and Mr. Byttner is a sort of gadfly for the government, keeping certain members of parliament infuriated by his attacks on a few of Sweden's governmental measures.

In all the cities of Scandinavia I have visited, I have gone not to the usual foreign press bureau, but to a newspaper office. And, within a few hours, I have had an entree to governmental officials and offices which would have been impossible through the ordinary channels.

I like newspaper people and I like to meet those who are a credit to the business, such as Mr. Byttner and the others whom I have met. They can write, they know what's going on and they are well-read and speak a number of languages. It's a bit embarrassing for an innocent abroad.

PIEDMONT WINS.

DEMOREST, Ga., Feb. 23.—The Piedmont basketball team won a double victory here Tuesday night. The girls defeated Satham, 49 to 31, and the boys won from Chocopee, 56 to 48.

YORK TO DODGERS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(P)—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced the purchase of Jack Kimball, right-handed pitcher of the Elmira, N.Y., club in the Eastern league.

JORDAN IS STAR AS JACKETS WIN OVER CLEMSON

Ed Jones Out With Sprained Ankle as Tech Cops, 53-33.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Clemson's basketball team failed to add to her record of being the only team to defeat Tech at the Naval Armory last night when they dropped an uninteresting game to the Jackets, 53 to 33.

Despite the fact 200 tickets were put on sale to the public, the armory had plenty of vacant seats, including those occupied by students.

The crowd was unenthusiastic and displayed little spirit, save for a couple of minutes during the first half when play became fast and furious.

JONES MISSES GAME.
The Jackets played without the services of Ed Jones, the team's leading scorer, who is suffering a severely sprained ankle.

It was the first game Jones has ever missed because of injuries. Joe Ebdon, although lacking experience and showing a little uncertainty at times, filled in for him nicely.

Bill Jordan bagged 17 points to lead both teams in the individual scoring department, but Bo Johnston was only one point behind Fletcher Sims got 12 and sank all of his six free throws.

Banks McFadden, elongated Clemson center, last night showed why he is rated so highly. He contributed 13 points to the losing cause.

Bo Johnston said after the game, with the exception of Mac Berry, North Carolina State star, McFadden is the best center he has had to cope with all season.

Junior Anderson played his usual brilliant game at guard, stealing the ball from some Tiger's hands several times.

PLAY WHOLE GAME.

The starting Tech five played the whole game but Clemson substituted frequently. Watson McGee, Tiger forward, was banished late in the game for excessive fouls.

Coach Roy Mundorf, of Tech, is hoping Jones' ankle will be healed by Saturday when the Jackets play the South Carolina Gamecocks in their own chicken house.

However, Jones can hardly walk now and it is very doubtful whether or not he will be ready.

After the game with Carolina, Tech concludes her pre-tournament schedule with a game with Ralph Johnson's Auburn Tigers here next Monday night.

DUGAN, M'ADAMS BATTLE FRIDAY

Red Dugan, the Chattanooga terror, and Jack McAdams will settle their differences Friday night at the East Point auditorium, when they meet in a 90-minute match.

The redhead and McAdams were the last two men to fight this week during the free-for-all royal at the Spring Street arena. They battled for the 60 cent purse. It was a rough-and-tumble affair. Dugan was declared the winner by the referee but the fans disagreed. The former Atlanta grappler issued a challenge for a no-time-limit bout, no holds barred and the Chattanooga accepted.

The fans will see two rough matmen in action in the semi-final bout. Roy Reynolds, Oklahoma, will try to dismantle Swede Johnson in a one-hour bout.

2d Scrimmage Set For Jackets Today

Despite the saturated weather and sloppy field, Coach W. A. Alexander said it was "a good day for football" and sent his Tech charges through a rugged session yesterday on Rose Bowl field.

Coach Alex also announced his team would scrimmage for the second time of spring training today. The first rough work was held Saturday and another is on tap for next Saturday.

The practice yesterday was the first of the current spring practice in such rough weather. But it allowed the players to get the feel of soggy ball and slippery footing.

You Don't Have To Be a Sleuth To Name Winner

Who's winning? That's easy. W. Paul Carpenter (right), Atlanta attorney and former United States district attorney, sits confidently smoking his pipe. He has the situation well in hand and is ready for the kill. M. Neil Andrews (left), assistant United States district attorney, has a case he can't beat this time and the jury is about to come in with a guilty verdict. Note the tray of cigar stubs at Andrews' left and his worried, subdued expression. However, Carpenter does not always enjoy such good luck against his friendly rival. They are regular tournament players.

COOPER FAVORED AT THOMASVILLE

Stanley Home Sets Practice Round Pace With Sub-Par 69.

By ROY WHITE.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 23.—Stanley Horne, Ottawa professional, set the pace today with a 69, three under par, in practice for the annual South Atlantic $3,000 tournament, which opens with 18 holes Friday afternoon.

Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo., and Ralph Hutcheson, another of the touring professionals, followed with sub-par 71's and were particularly proud of their first-round ventures, since the course was heavy from an all-day rain.

Harry Cooper, the little Scot, who went into the lead among the pros with a victory in the recent Crescent City tourney at New Orleans; Lawson Little, former king of the amateurs; Horton Smith, twice winner of the Masters' tournament at Augusta; Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Jimmy Thomson and Dick Metz, the 1937 Thomasville open winner, arrived today but did not get in a practice round.

METZ PRACTICES.
Metz, however, did find time enough to drive some two dozen balls from the practice tees and wound up with a long session on the putting green in front of the clubhouse.

Gene Sarazen, the former British and American open champion, arrived late Tuesday and put in a practice round today but was not entirely satisfied with his scoring. True, he was not bearing down, and used the morning more as a range seeker, rather than for fine scoring.

This marks the third successive year in which Sarazen has selected the Thomasville open as his tournament starter for the year.

W. D. (Doc) Tumlin, well-known Atlanta player from the East Lake and West End Clubs, arrived today and will compete for the amateur prize. Bill Warwick, of Valdosta, a former Vanderbilt football star, also has entered for the amateur prize.

OLIVERS TO ENTER.
Word was received here this afternoon that John Oliver and one or two of his brothers from Valdosta will be over Friday morning when the first of the championship strokes will be fired. Johnny was former Georgia amateur champion and has been playing fine golf in recent practice rounds.

The tournament opens Friday with an 18-hole round, followed by another 18-hole round Saturday and the 36-hole finals Sunday.

The cream of America's professional golfers, along with a fine entry of amateurs, already is assured, with many more expected before the deadline.

An all-day rain sent scores skyrocketing today, but the weatherman has predicted a clearing to night and much colder Friday and Saturday.

Cigarette Stubs Show Andrews in Distress

Atlanta Lawyers Among Hundreds Who Are Intensely Interested in Checkers Here.

By BILL MUNDAY.

Questions of fact and law obliterated from their minds momentarily, the Atlanta lawyers shown in the above picture find rest and relaxation in a friendly game of checkers. Both are experts, M. Neil Andrews, assistant United States district attorney, having learned the game back of a country store in his native Walker county, Georgia, soft-drink stoppers being employed for men; and W. Paul Carpenter, former United States district attorney, having become acquainted with the game out of the book.

Just what kind of a sleuth are you? In the accompanying photograph it is Andrews' move. All the clues to the trend of the contest are before you. Who is winning?

Andrews and Carpenter are just a pair of hundreds of Atlantans who gather several times each week after a hard day's toil for a few rounds on the board. The game, although not publicized as is bridge, is quite popular among our citizenry. And the city boasts some real talent. Both Carpenter and Andrews are regular competitors in the annual state tournament talk as well as play proficiently.

And their engagements are most amusing to observe; country boy vs. city lad. One knows the book moves from A to Z; the other the rural offensive from the zenith to the nadir!

Answer to checker puzzle: It is obvious that Carpenter is winning since the number of cigar stubs on the table would indicate that Andrews is in a "sweat," since it is axiomatic that cigar smokers when nervous light one after another, rather subconsciously. And Carpenter is smoking a pipe. The butts could not be his.

Hasty, Armstrong To Manage Clubs

Clanton Armstrong, who has done almost every job of work connected with baseball affairs at Ponce de Leon park in the last eight years, yesterday was named business manager of the Gadsden, Ala., club in the Southeastern league. Bill Morrell will continue as playing manager.

Announcement was made at the same time that Bob Hasty will manage the Cordele Reds, of the Georgia-Florida league. The Crackers have working agreements with Gadsden and Cordele, and will get first call on prospects. The Crackers are to get two players at the end of the season and, in return, will help the clubs all they can.

Hasty was with the Steel plant nine last summer and was named on the all-amateur team in the national tournament. He still is a winning pitcher and should help Cordele considerably.

PAT BERG TAKES FIRST MATCH, 7-5

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23. (P)—Patty Berg went on her winning way today in the first round of the annual South Atlantic golf championship, taking an easy victory from Mrs. Joseph J. Lawler, New Rochelle, N. Y., 7 and 5.

While the Minneapolis red-head, who won the medal yesterday with a sparkling 74, kept her pace, the other favorites also came through their matches. Mrs. Jane Cothran Jameson, Palm Beach, defeated Mrs. Lillian Zech, Chicago, 5 and 4, and Miss Kathryn Hemphill, Columbia, S. C., defending champion, won from Mrs. T. E. Schludenberg, Baltimore, by the same margin.

Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., won handily from Mrs. W. R. Stauffer, New York, 7 and 5.

In a closely contested match, Mrs. William Hockeney, Lake Hopatcong, N. J., defeated Laddie Irwin, Montclair, N. J., one up in 18 holes.

Sally Guth, Webster Grove, Mo., eliminated Elizabeth Wing, Evanston, Ill., 4 and 3, and Dorothy Traugott, San Francisco, beat Mrs. E. F. Cary, Minneapolis, 7 and 2.

Marian Miley, of Lexington, Ky., and Fort Pierce, Fla., had a hard battle with Maria McDougall, of Portland, Ore. Miss McDougall carried Miss Miley to the 21st hole.

In the second round tomorrow, Miss Berg meets Miss Guth; Miss Bauer, Miss Miley; Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. Hockeney; Miss Traugott, Miss Hemphill.

Amateur Baseball Loops Are Formed
An eight-team commercial league and a six-team Sunday School league was completed at a joint amateur baseball meeting at Beck and Gregg Monday night. It was the best turnout for the first meeting in recent years.

The Commercial league set April 9 as the opening date with a 21-game schedule.

They will play a split season schedule with 11 games in the first half.

The opening date of the Sunday School was not decided upon. There are still several openings in another Commercial league, while the Sunday School league will be extended to eight clubs if more teams enroll.

Affiliated teams will meet next Monday at the same place to draw for opening games. Interested teams are requested to call Jimmie Harbison at Walnut 2010 for further information.

STAR CONFERS WITH B. RICEY FOR 21-2 HOURS

Jerome Might Pleased; Feels Sure He'll Have Big Year.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Feb. 23. (P)—Dizzy Dean, the big right-hand pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals of the National league, ended his annual salary squabble with the Cardinals' business office today by signing a contract for the 1938 season.

"Ole Ditz" motored here from his Bradenton, Fla., winter home, shook hands with Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the club, went into a hotel room huddle with the boss and signed on the dotted line all within two and a half hours.

ABOUT $17,500.

Neither Dean nor Rickey would disclose the salary figure, but reports soon were circulated that Dizzy agreed to pitch this year for about $17,500. He previously said he would demand $20,000.

The big moundman returned the first contract the Cards sent him, saying he expected to take a salary reduction but was not in the mood for a slash of "more than $10,000." Rickey didn't say at the time how much he had offered Dean, but the figure was reported to be around $15,000.

All smiles, Dizzy emerged from the conference today declaring he was mighty pleased and would report for spring training at the Cards' St. Petersburg camp March 2. His only comment about the size of the salary he is to receive was "it suits me."

He said he felt sure he would have a better season this year than he had in 1937 when he won 13 games, lost 10 and finished third among National league pitchers in effectiveness. He quit playing golf recently to "rest up" for the spring training.

BUSINESS MEETING.
Today's conference between Dean and Rickey was the quietest and most businesslike in the series they have held each year about the pitcher's objections to the pay offered him. Usually they exchanged hot words by long distance telephone before they got together and walked out on each other several times during the annual confab.

Rickey said tonight he expects Joe Stripp, veteran infielder, to come here tomorrow or Friday for a conference. Stripp, now running a baseball school at Orlando, has demanded at least $10,000 for signing. The Cards' offer has not been made known.

If Rickey comes to terms with Stripp, the only remaining St. Louis holdout will be Joe Medwick, outfielder, who led the league in batting last year. Medwick, who has spent most of the winter at St. Petersburg, is not satisfied with the salary boost the club offered.

Rickey disclosed tonight he already had conferred with Medwick.

MEDWICK FRIENDLY.
"He hasn't signed yet, though," the club official continued. He described the meeting as a "friendly call," but admitted terms were discussed.

Rickey was jubilant over his success in signing Dean so easily.

"He's got fire in his eye. That may mean a lot to our club. The Cards are a seventh place ball team on paper, but the spirit Dizzy is showing may catch on. The Gas House Gang has lifted itself by its boot struts before."

"It's good news to us that Dean is in such a frame of mind, but it's bad news to the other seven clubs in the league."

'Return From Hell'

Bob Hayes, Daredevil Driver, Relates Narrow Escape From Death; Francis Knew All the Answers.

By Jack Troy

For those who may have become bored with the sameness of it all, Bob Hayes recommends the life of a "hell driver," those intrepid fellows who go around the country risking their necks to give people a thrill by jumping automobiles over trucks, breaking out of burning barges and doing other such hazardous things that are guaranteed to give one and all a keen and added zest for living.

Bob Hayes was here yesterday with Sol Kaufman, who runs the "Hell Driver" outfit. They left later on in the day for Dallas, Texas, where the next show is scheduled.

"I've had a few narrow squeaks," declared Bob Hayes. "Not so very long ago in West Virginia—you may have read about it—I raced a car up a ramp and wasn't constructed properly, and instead of diving over a truck, I went into a tailspin and spent the next few weeks recovering in hospital."

"It's not the jumps, but the landings, that get you. I think I'm the only one who has ever tried the return from hell. I did it successfully last year at Lakewood and up east this winter, I tried it again and barely escaped with my life."

"They built the garage around the car and then set fire to the structure. I had the motor running, but the engine stalled. I was upped in a blazing inferno and I can see the scars I still carry on my arm. (He was burned rather severely on the hands and about the head.)"

"The timely aid of a couple of my coworkers saved my life. They broke in a side of the garage and got me out just in the nick of time."

Hayes is going to try one of the most difficult stunts of all this winter. He will attempt to jump a car over seven other cars.

SOMETHING NEW. "I can't say what the result will be. I've never tried it before. And, of course, there is no chance to try it out in practice. But it's the chance you have to take."

"Yep, it's quite a thrill diving through space with a car, and you get jolted up considerably in most every stunt. But I wouldn't trade jobs with, say, a man at a desk. I guess you would say I was reckless. Funny thing, though, I have never had an accident with a car in the normal course of driving from meet to meet. And I don't particularly care for 'breakneck' speeds."

Sol Kaufman is the canny member of the "Hell Driver" outfit, however. He doesn't drive a car, but he can be seen at the meetings, him to substitute for anybody in case something goes wrong.

"The show must go on."

Offhand, Bob Hayes doesn't look the type of a daredevil. He's more the college football type, lithe, broad-shouldered. He weighs 185 pounds.

But, now and then, you detect look in his eyes that speaks of a real daredevil's adventure; a will-may-care look, and a desire to try something few others dare tempt. He thinks it is great work you can get it.

ate Ray Francis had the Answer. The late Ray Francis, who was a pitcher in his time with the Crakers, said one day "It's all kinds of people to make a bird, and doggone if I don't bet we've got 'em all right on this ball club."

Francis pitched on the 1925 team which won the pennant with Bert Niehoff, now with the Louisville, as manager. He was one of the real baseball wits.

Jim Lindsey came along much later on, of course, to entertain the Crakers in off-hours. The Francis-Lindsey types are great for a ball club's morale. No one ever felt low with either of them.

Crackers Given leg To Stand On. A well-known Atlanta stove concern noted in The Constitution, picture of the hot stove leg at Ponce de Leon that was missing.

SMITHIES MEET COLUMBUS FIVE IN SECOND TILT

G. M. A. Faces Benedictine; Savannah Battles Richmond Academy.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Play in the annual G. I. A. A. basketball tournament will start this afternoon at 2 o'clock when Marist College and Commercial High square off for the first game in the Warren arena.

Tech High and Columbus High will play at 3 o'clock; G. M. A. meets Benedictine of Savannah, at 8 o'clock, and Savannah battles Richmond Academy, of Augusta, at 9 o'clock to complete the day's schedule.

Jordan High, of Columbus, and winner of the Big Eight championship, Lanier High, of Macon; Monroe Aggies and Boys' High drew byes in the first round.

All games will be played at the Warren arena. Whitey Bryant, of Monroe, and Cliff McLaughlin, of Atlanta, will officiate.

TEAMS READY. The 12 teams from all parts of the state have completed preliminary practice and all are expected to be at top condition for the big meet.

Savannah High, last year's winner; Monroe Aggies, runners-up in 1937; Jordan High, who captured the Big Eight title by winning 10 straight games, and Lanier High, who boast of one of the strongest prep aggregations in the state, are considered the strongest teams in the meet.

The Atlanta entries, Marist, which will make her first appearance in G. I. A. A. competition, having been admitted at the last meeting; Tech High, Boys' High, G. M. A. and Commercial, are given little or no chance to win.

Of these teams, Tech High and G. M. A. appear to be the strongest. Those Smithies.

If Gabe Tolbert can spur his Smithies to play at their full power, Tech High may spring some surprises and become the real dark horse of the tournament.

Sam Burdage's G. M. A. Cadets have been somewhat of an erratic outfit this year, but if they find themselves during the tournament, the Cadets will give a lot of teams trouble.

Boys' High, under the tutelage of Dwight Keith for the first time, spent most of the early games experimenting and building for next year, and can hardly be expected to go very far in the tournament.

WEAKEST ENTRIES. Marist and Commercial appear the weakest of the Atlanta entries. The finals of the meet will be played Saturday.

Friday and Saturday afternoon games will start at 3 instead of 2 o'clock but the night games remain at the same time as the opening rounds.

Admission prices are 50 cents for men and 35 cents for ladies. Students will be admitted for 25 cents, provided tickets are purchased at the school.

Bartush Is Hurt As Thesz Takes One-Fall Match. Billy Bartush outclassed Louis Thesz so decisively for 25 minutes last night that fans were wondering how the Hungarian ever won the world's heavyweight title, but he made one mistake and it cost him the match. Charging Thesz with a flying tackle, Bartush was picked up and hurled backwards over the Hungarian's shoulders out of the ring into the press row.

Newspapermen, radio announcers and timekeepers were scattered in all directions and Bartush was painfully hurt, suffering severe bruises and a ruptured blood vessel in his left leg that prevented his returning to the ring.

These injuries, however, did not prevent Steve (Crusher) Casey, the new heavyweight king, is due for an appearance at the Warren arena next week. His opponent has been named.

Feature of last night's show was Doug Wyoff's straight-fall victory over Babe Zaharias and an after-bout fight between Zaharias and Referee Tiny Ruff, followed by a similar dressing room exchange between Wyoff and Zaharias. Doug finally convinced Zaharias he was master. And he convinced the fans. The ex-Tech star is a real wrestler and is going to be hard to stop.

Gladys Vallebuona Wins in Miami Play CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP) Mrs. Lloyd Budge, of Seattle, sister-in-law of Don Budge, was eliminated in the first round of the Miami Biltmore's annual women's tennis tournament today by Doris Hart, of Miami, 6-2, 6-2.

Marta Barnett, state champion, and Mrs. Emmett Choate, both of Miami, advanced by default over Anne Harrison, of Naples, Fla., and Mrs. Lindsey Hopkins Jr., of Atlanta, respectively.

Mrs. George Battellor, of Coral Gables, defeated Miss Marian Lockhart, of Coral Gables, 6-0, 6-2. Mrs. Oden Schaeffer, of Coral Gables, was beaten by Gladys Vallebuona, of Atlanta, 6-0, 6-2, and Mrs. Hugh Larimore, of Coral Gables, put out Mrs. Frank B. Race, of Coral Gables, 6-2, 6-1.

Alain prevented completion of the first-round matches.

Race Driver Killed In Savannah Event. SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 23.—(AP) George Porter Way, 26-year-old driver of Norwich, Conn., died tonight of a head injury suffered when his motor car plunged from the fair grounds track here Sunday and crashed into a tree.

Hurled against two branches of the tree, Way never fully regained consciousness. He was taken the south turn at high speed when his car left the track.

Among survivors are his widow, Mrs. Katherine Way; a son, John Way, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Way, of Norwich.

Joe Louis Kayoes Nate Mann in Third

Challenger Rocks Brown Bomber With Short Hard Right in First Round.

By JOHN LARDNER.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.) RINGSIDE, MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Feb. 23. Nathan Mann, New Haven's white hope, elected to slug it out with Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship of the world tonight, and discovered his mistake in the third round.

A minute and fifty-six seconds after the third session began, Nathan was on his knees and giggling at Referee Arthur Donovan as Mr. Donovan counted him out. A left hook, deposited squarely on the chin, put Nathan in cold storage for the evening. They dragged him off to his corner, and Louis looked mildly around at the crowd, and the crowd responded with howls of disappointment.

The fans had been rooting for Mann. In fact, public sentiment was all that Nathan had in his favor. Louis had everything else, including ambidextrous power that mar Nathan look like a greenhorn in the trading market. Whenever Mann threw a punch, Louis threw a better one. On that basis, the fight could only finish one way.

FOUGHT GAMEDLY. If he did nothing else, Nathan died a game death. He went in there punching. He landed a short right that made Louis wince and cover up, and then he landed another, and that last one was the one that made Nathan look like a greenhorn in the trading market. He landed a short right that made Louis wince and cover up, and then he landed another, and that last one was the one that made Nathan look like a greenhorn in the trading market.

RIGHTHANDER REFUSES TO REPORT AT CAMP, FAVORING INJURED BACK. HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 23.—(AP) An unsmiling Bill Terry declared a yellinger here today that Clyde Castleman, his A. W. O. L. pitcher, could quit baseball for a year or permanently as far as he's concerned. The New York Giants manager said he had made his final overture to the pitcher, who issued a statement from his home at Nashville, Tenn., that his injured back might keep him from playing baseball this year.

"All I can go by is what the doctor who operated on him said," Terry declared, "and he says Castleman is all right; that the back won't hurt him and he can jog."

Replying to the pitcher's assertion that he would rather stay out of baseball for a year than injure his back, Terry stormed:

"If he wants to stay out of baseball a year or if he never reports it's all right with me. I can make other arrangements."

Announcing that he was "just about ready" to make his 1938 season plans without Castleman, Terry said he might make a deal for another right-handed pitcher.

He set with Left-handers Carl Hubbell and Cliff Melton and Right-handers Hal Schumacher and Harry Gumbert and had hoped for Castleman to provide the fifth starting pitcher.

Taking advantage of the first warm sunshine since their arrival here for a 10-day conditioning period, Terry gave his pitchers and catchers a two and one-half hour workout today.

The Hubbells and the Schumachers met again on the diamond, the Hubbells winning for the second straight day, 19 to 16. Travis Jackson, former Giant infielder who will manage the club's Jersey City farm this year, pitched the entire game for both sides. It went 10 or 12 innings—the unofficial scorekeepers lost track.

GOOD NEWS. Luise Rainer, character actress, will make one of her infrequent radio appearances in a dramatic sketch with Robert Taylor on "Good News of 1938" in the program to be heard over WBS at 8 o'clock tonight.

Connie Boswell, popular rhythm songstress; Douglas McPhail, baritone; Melvyn Douglas, warrent William and Virginia Bruce will also be featured on the show.

Not a Holdout, Says Castleman. NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 23.—(AP) Clyde Castleman, youthful right-hand Giants hurler, said tonight he had written a letter to Manager Bill Terry at Hot Springs, Ark., explaining why he would not report there for training.

"If Terry wants me to go over there and explain it all to him I will do so gladly; I will not go over to train, though. That much is definite. I hope to pitch this year and I expect to," Castleman said, and added:

"I'm taking it easy, though. I know my own back better than Terry or anybody else. It's not a matter of contract or anything. I'm no holdout. I'm simply not willing to gamble ten years of my future against one."

Max Baer Given License Renewal. NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP) Max Baer, the former heavyweight champion, appeared before the state athletic commission today, assured the commissioners he is "serious" in his training, and was granted a renewal of his license as a boxer in New York.

Fred Perry in Near Fistic Duel at Miami NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 23.—(AP) Fred Perry, English tennis player, lost an exhibition match to Ellsworth Vines here today. The score was 6-1, 6-4.

The defeat was the second incident of an uncomfortable day for the Briton. Earlier, at Miami, he engaged in a vigorous argument with a United States Internal Revenue officer and delayed the departure of the Bahaman Clipper 10 minutes.

Raymond Ford, the American officer, declined to grant Perry a departure permit because he had not paid his income tax. He explained that aliens making a living in the United States are required to pay the tax before leaving the country.

Perry in a stormy scene, asserted he paid $5,000 last year and would not pay the current tax until it was normally due. After 30 minutes Vines offered to guarantee Perry's return to the United States or to pay the British tax in event he didn't return. The permit to depart then was granted. (Nassau is a British colony.)

In a doubles match Perry and Berkeley Bell teamed to defeat Vines and Walter Senior, 7-5, 7-5.

SWEETPALOT. LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—(AP) Sharing feature billing with a $5,000 sprint for California-bred juveniles, the $1,500 Eureka purse at a mile and one-eighth was won by Dixiana Farm's Sweetpalot at Santa Anita park today.

Fort Mac Loses. Fort McClellan, Alabama, basketball team defeated the Fort Mac five here last night, 58 to 38. The Fort Mac quintet will journey to Fort Oglethorpe for a game Saturday night.

Guardians of Georgia's health will gather at the Biltmore hotel today for a three-day session.

Mayor Hartfield will welcome the delegates to the Georgia Public Health Association meeting at 9:30 o'clock today, following which the hygiene experts will launch an intensive discussion of health problems. A symposium will be held by Dr. R. Floyd Payne, assistant director of Fulton county health work.

The symposium will follow addresses by Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, state health director; Dr. G. M. Anderson, Calhoun county commissioner of health; Mrs. Virginia Hawkins, of Savannah, district advisory nurse, and L. M. Clarkson, director of sanitary engineering of the state department.

During the afternoon there will be discussions of malaria, hookworm, typhus fever and other common health menaces of the state. Sessions tomorrow will be divided into two groups—one composed of medical officers and one of nurses and sanitation workers.

The annual banquet will be held in the hotel at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Principal speakers will include C. A. Matthews, DeKalb county commissioner, and Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer of Alabama.

Mrs. A. Edison, 75, former Atlantian, died Tuesday in St. Louis, Mo., after an illness of three days.

She was the mother of Sam, Harry, Mark, Irving and Simon Edison, operators of the largest chain of women's shoe stores in America.

Born in Riga, Latvia, Mrs. Edison had resided in Georgia more than 10 years. She had lived in Atlanta, Adel and Valdosta, and was known throughout the state for her interest in religious welfare and her work in behalf of charitable organizations. She had recently celebrated the golden anniversary of her marriage.

Surviving in addition to her five sons are her husband, A. Edison, of St. Louis; a daughter, Mrs. Rose Edison Gordon, and three grand-children, David, Louis and Dorothy Gordon, of Atlanta.

Funeral services and burial were held Wednesday in St. Louis.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS

Jeff watched Tarzan descend with the girl, as easily as if he had no burden at all. And he conceived a bitter hatred for the ape-like creature that held the girl to him. At last Tarzan and Mary reached the ground, where stood Jeff Biggers with rifle ready.

"Put down your gun. He is our friend," Mary explained; "he knows where father is, and he will take us there." "Huh!" grunted Jeff; "how do you know he won't lead us into a trap?" "If you are afraid I'll deceive you, you need not come," Tarzan said sternly.

The Jungle Lord turned and started away. "No, no, come back!" Mary pleaded; "you must take us to father. Mustn't he, Jeff?" The hunter grunted consent. He dare not do anything to arouse Mary's ill-will, for he hoped somehow to win his way to the girl's heart.

So these three started back to camp. And behind them, down wind, so that he was undetected by the Jungle Lord, moved the Zambesi scout, spying on them. Already his savage mind was busy with plans to capture them as victims for the devouring Tree-God!

RAIL LEADER SEES UPJRN IN SPRING

Norris Pauses Here, Declares South Affected Least of All.

A prediction that spring will bring a gradual increase in all lines of business was made here yesterday by Ernest E. Norris, president of the Southern Railway system.

Norris, who served in Atlanta from 1912 to 1920 as superintendent of the railroad, paused several hours in this city in his private train on a routine inspection trip.

"The recession in business which came upon the country abruptly last fall seems to have reached bottom," he said, "and spring will bring with it a gradual increase in all business activities."

Southeast Holds Up.

In this connection Mr. Norris called attention to the fact that loadings of his company in the southeast have been relatively better than carload receipts from connecting lines in the east and middle west, indicating the southeast has not suffered as greatly as other sections.

He denied reports that the railroad would build a new station on Peachtree road, where Montgomery-Ward Company bought property with plans to establish a store.

"The thought uppermost in the minds of most railroad managers," he said, "is the decision due from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"This decision, anticipated soon, involves restoration of freight rates to about the general level of rates that were in effect seven or eight years ago.

"If the application is granted in full, the average level of railroad freight rates throughout the country will still be about 20 per cent below the level of rates in effect in 1921."

Mr. Norris said his inspection trip would take him to Jacksonville, and thence to Palm Beach, Fla., where he will stay briefly with friends. His headquarters is in Washington, D. C.

ANDREW GILES DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Real Estate Man Falls to Floor in Healey Building Lobby.

Andrew S. (Sam) Giles, Atlanta real estate man, fell stricken with a heart attack shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the lobby of the Healey building.

Manager of the collection department of J. H. Ewing & Sons, Inc., for the last 15 years, Giles left the office in apparent good health, associates said. As he stepped into the lobby of the building crowded with homeward bound workers, he dropped to the floor, it was reported. He was taken to Grady hospital and pronounced dead on arrival.

He was the son of the late Judge A. S. Giles, of Perry, Ga., state legislator, and a member of St. Mark Methodist church. He lived at 419 Claire drive, N. E.

Funeral plans are being made by Brandon-Bond-Condon.

Near Riot Follows Sonja's Ice Carnival

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The conclusion of Sonja Henie's ice carnival at Municipal stadium last night was followed by a near riot as an estimated thousand youngsters made snowballs of ice shavings scraped up from the rink and threw at everything and everybody in sight.

HUNGARY'S OFFER ON DEBT REVEALED

Minister Proposes Payment of Principal, Without Interest.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(UP) Hungarian Minister John Pelenyi disclosed today his government has proposed a readjustment of its "war debt" whereby it would repay the United States the full amount of its original loan but without interest.

The loan in question was actually a post-war relief credit used to purchase flour and wheat in the United States, but it is popularly classed with the "war debts." It is more correctly known as a relief debt. The original loan was $1,685,000 and Hungary so far has repaid, in principal and interest, $478,000, according to Pelenyi.

SENATOR DEMANDS CASH OR BAHAMAS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Senator Smathers, Democrat, New Jersey, returned from his honeymoon in Florida today with a demand that Great Britain pay her war debt to the United States or give this country the Bahamas Islands in satisfaction of the debt.

"Great Britain has no business owning 400 islands in the Bahamas, many of which are only 50 miles off the Florida coast," Smathers said.

The senator said he and his bride went to Nassau.

5 AIR 'FORTRESSES' LAND IN LIMA, PERU

Sixth Plane Lags, Flight to Panama Set.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Five United States "flying fortresses" landed here late today after a flight from Santiago, Chile, while a sixth good-will plane landed at Arica, Chile, for the night.

The five army planes made the 1,700-mile flight from Santiago in approximately eight and a half hours in threatening weather that forced the United States contingent to fly above the clouds most of the way.

The sixth plane took off from Santiago four hours after the others, and halted its flight near Arica, a short distance from the Peruvian frontier. Tomorrow the plane is expected to join the others at Lima and will hop to Panama Friday morning.

CRACKTRAIN DERAILLED; ENGINEER, FIREMAN DIE

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Two men were killed when a Kansas City-Southern passenger train was wrecked at 2:40 p. m. today at the Spencer, Texas, passing track, 16 miles south of Texarkana.

Runaway Released Broke and Girlless

Love left Herbert Roberts stranded yesterday.

His hopes of wedding bliss shattered by the cruel hand of fate and the heavy hand of Atlanta law, the 20-year-old North Carolina farmhand who came here last week with 97 cents and Melba Gatewood, 16, to find a job and a minister, was released by police here on instructions from the sheriff at Wadesboro, North Carolina.

He said he would not return to the Tarheel state, but would continue his job-seeking here. When he left the police station he was broke—in heart and in pocket. His girl had been returned to North Carolina by her aunt.

Near Riot Follows Sonja's Ice Carnival

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The conclusion of Sonja Henie's ice carnival at Municipal stadium last night was followed by a near riot as an estimated thousand youngsters made snowballs of ice shavings scraped up from the rink and threw at everything and everybody in sight.

It was a full 20 minutes before police, themselves the targets of a well-aimed barrage, restored order with the aid of fire hoses.

HUNGARY'S OFFER ON DEBT REVEALED

Minister Proposes Payment of Principal, Without Interest.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(UP) Hungarian Minister John Pelenyi disclosed today his government has proposed a readjustment of its "war debt" whereby it would repay the United States the full amount of its original loan but without interest.

The loan in question was actually a post-war relief credit used to purchase flour and wheat in the United States, but it is popularly classed with the "war debts." It is more correctly known as a relief debt. The original loan was $1,685,000 and Hungary so far has repaid, in principal and interest, $478,000, according to Pelenyi.

The five army planes made the 1,700-mile flight from Santiago in approximately eight and a half hours in threatening weather that forced the United States contingent to fly above the clouds most of the way.

The sixth plane took off from Santiago four hours after the others, and halted its flight near Arica, a short distance from the Peruvian frontier. Tomorrow the plane is expected to join the others at Lima and will hop to Panama Friday morning.

PENNSYLVANIA AFL CHARTER REVOKED

Green Says 400,000 Members Can't Be Used as Pawns for Lewis, Aides.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(UP) President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, tonight revoked the charter of the Pennsylvania State Federation, warning that the votes of 400,000 loyal AFL members in the state cannot be delivered by "self-constituted labor leaders ambitious for political power."

Green referred to John L. Lewis and his associates in the Committee for Industrial Organization who are seeking to tighten their hold on Pennsylvania politics. Lieutenant Governor Thomas Kennedy, of Pennsylvania, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, conferred with Lewis today and said afterward that he would have an announcement soon on his possible candidacy for the governorship.

Kennedy's candidacy already has been endorsed by the miners and the steel workers organizing committee which claim a membership of more than half a million in the state. Lewis' reported demand that the Democratic state committee back Kennedy clashes with the plans of Senator Joseph Guffey and other party leaders.

BOBBY JONES LOSES MOVIE TAXES SUIT

Case Involving $53,339 Will Be Appealed, Says Golfer Star's Father.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Robert Tyre (Bobby) Jones' suit to recover $53,339.37 he paid in 1931 and 1933 as income tax on revenue from a series of motion picture shorts on golfing was decided today by Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver.

Robert P. Jones, father of the golfer who was also involved in the action, said in Atlanta the case would be appealed.

The case was heard here February 3, and Judge Deaver signed the decision order today at Athens, where he is holding court. Jones, now retired from competitive golf, in Atlanta sought tax recovery on the contention he had sold his services for the pictures to his father for $1,000 and that Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., paid $101,000 in 1931 and $55,200 in 1933 to his father, who accepted the money as trustee for his son's three minor children.

Judge Deaver put his decision on the premise that if the golfer had assigned his future earnings to his father as trustee for the children after he had executed the contract with the motion picture company, "there could be no question as to the taxability of such income."

He then said: "This, in effect, and in contemplation of the income tax laws, is exactly what he did do... his father was a mere conduit."

COMMODITY PRICES FACE SENATE PROBE

$25,000 Appropriation Asked for Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A congressional movement for an investigation of "monopolistic" practices gaining momentum today when a senate committee approved a conservatively inspired resolution for a broad inquiry into commodity prices.

Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, one of the authors of the "statement to the American people" which recently gained wide attention as a conservative document on the principles of government, won commerce committee approval of his resolution calling for the price investigation.

Bailey suggested a speedy investigation of the cost of food, clothing, building materials, power, farm implements and "rates of transportation." He asked a $25,000 appropriation for a senate committee inquiry which he estimated would take "30 or 40 days."
